H. H. THE NIZAM'S STATE RAILWAY
ADVERTISING AT RAILWAY STATIONS

THE PROPRIETOR of the Bombay Gazette Press, having leased from the NIZAM'S STATE RAILWAY Company the exclusive right of advertising at all the Railway Stations belonging to the Company, is prepared to contract with parties desirous of posting notices or advertisements on the lines.

The Cantonment of SECUNDRABAD, as is well known, contains the largest military garrison in India—a garrison comprising over 5,000 British and native troops. Contiguous to it is the Cantonment of BOLARUM, garrisoned by two regiments and one battery of the Hydrabad Contingent, all officered by Europeans. South of Secunderabad, about 4 miles are the suburbs of Hydrabad, containing the Nizam's regular troops, about 5,000 in number, officered mostly by Europeans—besides a large civil population. It would manifestly be advantageous to firms to advertise at the stations on the above railway, the most important of which are SECUNDERABAD, HYDERABAD, GANGAWARUM, and TANDUR.

The announcements may be in English or in any of the NATIVE LANGUAGES.

INSURANCE COMPANIES, SHIPPING COMPANIES, HOTELKEEPERS, MERCHANTS, TRADERS and others who wish to force their business on the notice of the public, all alike value the privilege of Railway Station Advertising.

There is no reason why the privilege should not be also specially valuable to Advertisers in Indian Looking to the great and increasing number of Native Railway Passengers on the two trunk lines on Western India, Native Merchants, Traders, &c seeing that they have the privilege of advertising in their own language, would find the publication of their announcements at Railway Stations an infallible means of extending their business.

Advertisers can select the Stations at which they wish their Placards posted, and may advertise for any period that may be agreed on. The charges have been fixed on an extremely moderate scale to encourage Advertisers to make a liberal use of the new means now offered of making announcements known to the public.

Placards, according to the taste of Advertisers may be printed at moderate charge in ENGLISH or any of the NATIVE LANGUAGES at the Bombay Gazette Press. Estimates on application.

RATES.

Board not exceeding 2 feet long and 2 feet broad Re. 1 per month. For every additional square foot annas 2.

Thus a firm exhibiting a board, say 4 square feet will have the advantage of having their business advertisement read by thousands of Passengers on one station platform for the trifling monthly expenditure of Re. 1. Parties advertising on six stations or more will be allowed a discount of ten per cent, on twelve Stations or more, twenty-five per cent.

The boards to be delivered at the Bombay Gazette Office, whence they will be sent by the Lessee to the various stations selected by the Advertiser. In the event of the contract terminating, the boards will be brought back to Bombay at the expense and risk of the Advertiser.

Special arrangements for long periods.

For further particulars apply to the Manager of the "Bombay Gazette" Office, Esplanade Road Fort.

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us, ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—See article of the Civil Service Gazette.

LUMINOUS PHOSPHORUS.

Important to Invalids!

H. & T. KIRBY & CO.'S PREPARATIONS possess the vitalizing and energizing properties of this Drug in a state of great activity. The Phosphorus being retained in them unoxidised, it is quickly assimilated and, if taken daily with food, supplies the brain and spinal cord with its proper Pabulum.

In this form it is powerfully remedial, effecting cures in apparently hopeless cases, after all other medicines had failed, particularly in LOSS OF NERVE POWER, as manifested by INCAPACITY FOR WORK, WANT OF ENERGY, LOWNESS OF SPIRITS, NEURALGIA, MENTAL DEPRESSION, MELANCHOLIA, FEEBLE DIGESTION AND CIRCULATION, COLD EXTREMITIES, WEAK HEART, LOSS OF PHYSICAL VIGOUR, and NERVOUS DEBILITY. For these and all other conditions indicating defective nutrition or exhaustion of the nervous centres, whether arising from overwork, the effect of climate or excess, Medical authorities all agree that PHOSPHORUS is the most effectual remedy.

The following preparations, of which we are the ORIGINAL Makers, are thoroughly reliable. They may be obtained from our appointed Agents (see below), in Bottles, 3s., 5s. and 10s. each (English money), the 10s. Bottle containing sufficient for a course of three weeks. Two 5s. Bottles may be obtained direct from the makers' laboratory, carriage paid to any post town in India or Australia, by remitting Post Office Order for 21s.

SIMPLE PHOSPHORUS PILLS.

(Dr. KIRBY's Formula, No. 5), containing 1-25th gr. Phosphorus.

Dr. KIRBY says: "Experience fully warrants the administration of Phosphorus in this dose" in severe attacks of Neuralgia and cases of extreme Nervous Exhaustion; it gives excellent results, taken with food three or four times a day.

PHOSPHORUS AND QUININE PILLS.

(Dr. KIRBY's Formula, No. 3), containing 1-50th gr. Phosphorus.

This is a valuable combination of two powerful restoratives. As a nutrient tonic it gives power to the brain and spinal cord, imparts tone to the digestive organs, increases functional activity and improves the condition of the whole system. It is largely employed in India during convalescent stages of intermittent and remittent fevers. It is an excellent remedy for Malaise induced by the climate, and is a good prophylactic against Malaria.

PHOSPHORUS AND IRON PILLS.

(Dr. KIRBY's Formula, No. 7), containing 1-50th gr. Phosphorus.

This is given with great advantage in Anæmia, Sciatica, and other Neuralgic affections, also in the treatment of convalescence from fever and other debilitating diseases. It is an excellent chemical food for anæmic children, and a good adjuvant to a course of cod liver oil.

PHOSPHORUS AND NUX VOMICA PILLS.

(Dr. KIRBY's Formula, No. 6), containing 1-33rd gr. Phosphorus.

This combination is useful in all the cases named above, but especially in cases of feeble digestion and loss of power, following excesses. Taken regularly with food for a few weeks, it has a powerfully renovating effect on broken-down constitutions.

PHOSPHORUS, QUININE AND NUX VOMICA PILLS.

(Dr. KIRBY's Formula, No. 4), containing 1-50th gr. Phosphorus.

The use of this combination will be gathered from what has been said of the previous Formulæ, Nos. 3 and 6.

For a similar combination with Iron, see No. 9.

COMPOUND PHOSPHORUS PILLS.

(Dr. KIRBY's Formula, No. 9), containing 1-50th gr. Phosphorus, with Iron, Quinine and Strychnia.

This combination of nerve tonics has a very large application in the affections in all those cases which are characterised by impoverished blood and diminished nerve power, especially in that low condition of the general health which is induced by overwork, dissipation, and the effects of various habits. In this state iron and phosphorus is strongly indicated. In Constitutional Syphilis it has a high remedial power, by improving the condition of the blood and stimulating its regenerative power. It is exceedingly energising and strength-giving. As a tonic for convalescents recovering from fever and other exhausting diseases it is unequalled.

STRONG PHOSPHORUS, IRON, QUININE AND NUX VOMICA PILLS.

(Dr. KIRBY's Formula, No. 17), containing 1-25th gr. Phosphorus.

This is double the strength of No. 9 as regards Phosphorus and Quinine, and therefore should be prescribed only in cases where the larger dose of Phosphorus is needed.

PHOSPHORUS, CANTHARIDES & NUX VOMICA PILLS.

(Dr. KIRBY's Formula, No. 20), containing 1-33rd gr. Phosphorus.

This pill produces no irritation of the gastro-intestinal mucous membrane, but operates as a gentle stimulant to the genito-urinal organs. It is especially useful in cases of failure of power, indeed by passive discharges due to debility. It is useful also as a stimulating carminagogue in obstinate cases of Amenorrhœa, Leucorrhœa, and Abuse of the Penis.

Formula No. 30 contains Iron, and as a tonic is most suitable for feeble, anæmic females.

For fuller particulars of other Combinations, Medical Men are invited to apply to the Agents for descriptive pamphlet, supplied free of charge.

GWILYM EVANS' QUININE BITTERS.

COCKLE'S PILLS,

OF PURE VEGETABLE INGREDIENTS AND FREE FROM MERCURY.

4, Great Ormond-street, W. C.

COCKLE'S

ANTIBILIOUS PILLS.

These Pills consist of a careful and peculiar admixture of the best and mildest vegetable aperients, with the pure extract of the flowers of the Camomile. They will be found a most efficacious remedy for derangement of the digestive organs and for torpid action of the liver and bowels, which produce indigestion and several varieties of bilious and liver complaints. They speedily remove irritation and the feverish state of the stomach—allay spasms—correct the morbid condition of the liver and organs subservient to digestion—promote a due and healthy secretion of bile, and relieve the constitution of all gouty matter and other impurities, which, by circulating in the blood, must injuriously effect the action of the kidneys—thus by removing the causes productive of so much discomfort, they restore the energies both on body and mind. To those who indulge in the luxuries of the table, these Pills will prove highly useful, occasioning no pain in their action, unless they meet with an unusual quantity of acrid bile and acid matter in the stomach and bowels. To Europeans on their arrival in India or China they are recommended as a preservative against the fatal disorders peculiar to tropical climates. Their occasional use, if combined with the strictest attention to diet, will be frequently found to remove at once by their influence over the secretions that congestive and unhealthy condition of the liver which is so often the earliest antecedent of severe febrile and constitutional disturbance. It must be understood that these Pills are not recommended as containing any new or dangerously active ingredients; on the contrary, they are characterised by a remarkable simplicity of combination; and whatever merit they may be found to possess depends as much upon the selection of pure drugs and the unusual labour and attention bestowed upon their subsequent preparation, as upon the acknowledged peculiarity of their composition. They are not recommended as a panacea, nor are they adapted to all complaints; but as a mild and efficacious aperient and tonic in the various forms of indigestion, it will not, perhaps, be an exaggeration to state that they have been resorted to under all systems of diet, changes of climate, or atmospheric alterations, with an extraordinary degree of success for 86 years. This celebrated family aperient may be had throughout the United Kingdom in boxes 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 11s. and 22s., as well as in India, China, New Zealand, and the Australian colonies.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE,

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

ADVICE TO INVALIDS.—If you wish to obtain quiet, refreshing sleep, free from headache, relief from pain and anguish, to calm and assuage the weary achings of protracted disease, invigorate the nervous media, and regulate the circulating systems of the body, you will provide yourself with that marvellous remedy discovered by Dr. J. Collis Browne (late Army Medical Staff), to which he gave the name of CHLORODYNE, and which is admitted by the Profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.

CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma.

CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhœa, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.

Subject: "Christ's Greatest Apostle." The lecture will be followed by friendly discussion. Educated native gentlemen of all classes are cordially invited to attend.

A WEST INDIAN IN TROUBLE.—A West Indian named William Banks was placed before Mr. Shewshunker Govindram at the Esplanade Police Court yesterday by Constable Moore on a charge of being drunk and assaulting a Parsee. The accused said he was drunk, but was only "sky-larking" with the Parsee. His Worship fined the accused Rs. 5.

THE SUPPOSED MURDER AT GRANT ROAD.—Yesterday at the Girgaum Police Court, Kristnee, woman, alias Piari, alias Bhyree, was charged by Inspector Chislett before Mr. P. Ryan with committing murder by maliciously causing the death of a woman named Coulson on or about the 3rd instant. The case was postponed for hearing till the 18th instant, to enable the police to institute further enquiries into the matter.

ALARMING OCCURRENCE AT GIRGAUM ROAD.—On Thursday evening an accident occurred, by which four men narrowly escaped, if not death, at least very serious injuries. They were working on the roof, putting on tiles, when the shed suddenly collapsed, and they were precipitated to the ground. Strange to say they escaped with only slight injuries. After having had their bruises attended to at the J. J Hospital they were able to go home.

GAMBLING AT KHETWADDY.—Ballia Mullary was yesterday charged by Inspector Grayhurst before Mr. P. Ryan with keeping a common gaming-house at Khetwaddy, and also with having been found along with six others gaming there on Thursday night with cards, dice, and money. The whole of the accused, on admitting the truth of the complaint, were convicted. Ballia was sentenced to one month's rigorous imprisonment and the rest were fined Rs. 5 each.

DARING THEFT.—Inspector Jones placed a Hindoo named Mahadeo Krishna before Mr. Shewshunker Govindram yesterday on a charge of stealing a brass cooking utensil belonging to Kika Amirchand, a Bhattia living in Kika Street. The accused, it appears, deliberately walked into the house of the complainant about six o'clock on Thursday evening, and, taking up a lota, was walking away with it, when the complainant saw him and raised an alarm. When he was arrested he pretended to be drunk. The Magistrate sentenced him to three weeks' rigorous imprisonment.

THE ATTEMPTED WIFE-MURDER.—Yesterday at the Girgaum Police Court, Dhondoo Govind, a mill hand, was brought up on remand and charged by Inspector Holdway before Mr. P. Ryan with having on the 13th ultimo attempted to murder Chandreebai, his wife, by stabbing her with a knife. Mr. Little, the Public Prosecution, appeared to conduct the case for the prosecution and the accused in person. The circumstances of this case have already appeared in these columns. The Magistrate after recording the evidence for the prosecution formally committed the accused to take his trial at the next criminal sessions of the High Court.

POCKET-PICKING.—A Mahomedan named Hashim Haji was yesterday sentenced to three months' rigorous imprisonment by Mr. Shewshunker Govindram, at the instance of Inspector Saunders, for stealing a purse containing Rs. 21, the property of Narayen Bulwant. The complainant and his brother went to a shop in Abdool Rayman Street on Thursday last to purchase an umbrella, when they saw the accused hanging about, and shortly afterwards felt him brush against them. Their suspicion were aroused and on the complainant searching his pocket he missed his purse. They ran after the accused, who threw down the purse and attempted to escape, but was arrested.

MORE ABOUT THE ARSENAL ROBBERY CASE.—Abdool Rahimbhoy Mea and Noorbhoy Baijee were placed before Mr. Shewshunker Govindram yesterday by Inspector Briscoe on a charge of receiving stolen property from two burnishers, who are charged with the theft of a considerable amount of property from the Arsenal. Accused No. 2 was defended by Mr. D'Souza. The inspector stated that from information he received he went to the houses of the accused and found several roughriders bits, chains, buckles and 103 shots and empty shells, which they said they had purchased from the two Ordnance burnishers. The case was remanded till Monday next, Noorbhoy Bhaijee being admitted to bail in a sum of Rs. 200.

THE ALLEGED THEFT FROM A TORPEDO BOAT.—The case in which Peter Lobo, steward of the Torpedo Boat F, was charged with theft, came on again for hearing before Mr. C. P. Cooper yesterday afternoon. The accused in his defence said that when the captain was leaving the ship he simply told him to bring the things away, and as he was not certain whether the property in court was included in that order, he had brought the whole of it away. He said he had left the things in the boat and went to the captain's hotel twice ; but not finding him in he took the things away, intending to make them over next morning. His Worship said there was no proof that the accused took the things with a dishonest intention and discharged Lobo.

THE STREET SWEEPER STRIKE.—Gunnoo Bhow and another Hindoo were placed before Mr. C. P. Cooper on a charge of assaulting Tookaram Jailoo, a Municipal muccadum and another, who is a Municipal sub-inspector. It appears that the accused were among those sweepers who went out on strike, and were encamped on the Esplanade, when the complainants went to them and sought to bring them to a sense of t heir duty, but the accused did not appreciate this solicitude on their behalf and set upon them. Mr. Buckland informed the Magistrate that the men had all resumed work, and the Magistrate, considering that they had been incited to act in the manner they had done, bound them over in sums of Rs. 25 to be of good behaviour for six months.

DISHONEST SERVANTS.—Tookaram Luximon and Siva Lasco, cart-drivers in the service of Messrs. Treacher and Co., Byculla branch, were yesterday charged by Inspector Gobb, before Mr. P. Ryan, with theft. Tookaram was charged with stealing a bottle of brandy and a bottle of whiskey belonging to Messrs. Treacher and Co., Byculla, and Siva was charged with having in his possession a quantity of paper and envelopes, one penknife, eighteen lead pencils, one notebook, and a pint of brandy belonging to Messrs. Treacher and Co., Byculla. It appears Tookaram was caught on Thursday evening while going out of the stores of Messrs. Treacher and Co. at Byculla, trying to conceal the bottle of brandy. The house in which he lived being searched, a bottle of whiskey belonging to Messrs. Treacher and Co. was discovered amongst his traps. And on searching Siva's house, who resided close to Tookaram, the articles mentioned above were found in his possesion. They were both convicted. Tookaram was sentenced to three months' rigorous imprisonment and Siva to fourteen days' similar imprisonment.

PRESERVATION OF HORNED CATTLE.—Since his arrival in our midst Sriman Swamy has delivered some three addresses in three different languages on the question of the preservation of horned cattle, and the attitude of the daily press in this connection seems to show that the opinions the Swamy so forcibly attempted to impress upon the general public have been well received. The Honorary Secretary of the local Anjuman-i-Islam seems to dissent from the Swamy, and well he might. We quite agree with our contemporary of the Gazette that any legislation in the matter is quite undesirable and ought to be avoided. Any endeavour in the direction will be the ground-work of a religious struggle that may end disastrously, and therefore for this very reason more than for anything else every resort to legislation ought to be avoided. What legislation will not achieve, the education of popular instincts in the direction and the ventilation of the question from the agricultural point of view may achieve to a considerable extent. While on this question the Gazette taunts our people for certain injuries inflicted upon cattle. Since the taunts are well-meant we take them in good part and advise our own people to remove every possible flaw in their conduct before they go telling people to show respect to what is sacred to them.—Native Opinion.

HIGH COURT.—APPELLATE SIDE.

(Before Mr. Justice SCOTT and Mr. Justice JARDINE.)

IS PREVARICATION A PUNISHABLE OFFENCE ?

IMPERATRIX VS. DEWJEE ASDO.

THIS was a reference to the High Court by Mr. H. Woodward, District Magistrate of Nasik. During the hearing of a case before Mr. W. Doderet, First Class Magistrate, Nasik. The accused, a witness for the defence in that case, was, according to Mr. Doderet, guilty of gross prevarication, refusing to give direct answers and fencing with the questions, and he thereby intentionally caused interruption to the court, and committed an offence under section 228 of the Indian Penal Code. He was cautioned several times. The accused, in answer to the First Class Magistrate, said—"What I knew I said." Mr. Doderet found the accused guilty of an offence under section 228 of the Indian Penal Code, and fined him three rupees, in default to suffer simple imprisonment for three days. Mr. Woodward, in making this reference to the High Court, said that the conviction and sentence appeared to be illegal under the authority of the decisions of the Bombay High Court in Reg. vs. Amba bin Bhivarao and Harryjee vs. Pandubin Vittojee ; 8 B. H. C. R., pp. 6 and 7, should be reversed, inasmuch as prevarication does not amount to interruption, nor does persistent refusal to answer questions constitute an offence under section 228 of the Indian Penal Code. Their lordships, in disposing of the reference, directed that it should be pointed out to the District Magistrate that the cases in 4 B. H. C. R., 6 and 7, are explained in Reg. vs. Jaimal, 10 ibid, 69. The order passed was not necessarily illegal. The record and proceedings were ordered to be returned.

REFUSAL TO GIVE A STAMPED RECEIPT.

IMPERATRIX VS. SURCHAND AMOLIKCHAND.

This was an application for a revision of a sentence passed upon the accused by the First Class Magistrate of Bhiwandi, who found him guilty of refusal to give a duly stamped receipt on demand for a sum exceeding Rs. 20, and under section 64 of the General Stamp Act sentenced him to pay a fine of Rs. 30. The complainant said before the Magistrate that a composition of the debt due by him to the accused was made in the presence of several persons whom he had taken to the accused's house for that purpose. It was agreed that the complainant should pay Rs. 160 in all to the accused. He had Rs. 30 with him, and he paid the amount and demanded a receipt from the accused, who said he would give a receipt for Rs. 60 when complainant paid him Rs. 30 more out of the Rs. 130, which the complainant had promised to pay. Complainant went to the accused on one or two subsequent occasions and demanded a receipt, but the accused made the same answer and refused to give a receipt for Rs. 30. It appeared that it was agreed between the parties that a receipt for Rs. 60 was to be granted by the accused on payment of an additional sum of Rs. 30. The Magistrate came to the conclusion that the accused was guilty of refusing to give a stamped receipt, and that the defence put forward was a concocted story. The accused in his petition to the High Court urged that the Magistrate erred in law in holding that any offence under the Stamp Act had been committed. The agreement between the accused and the complainant having admittedly been that Rs. 60 were to be paid in one sum out of the total debt settled at Rs. 160, the accused was justified in refusing to pass a receipt until the sum agreed upon, Rs. 60, was paid to him.

Their lordships, on a consideration of all the circumstances, rejected the petition.

REVERSAL OF CONVICTION AND SENTENCE.

IMPERATRIX vs. NARAYAN KHANDAR.

This was an appeal from a decision of Mr. E. Hosking, Sessions Judge of Thana, who in February last convicted the accused of voluntarily causing grievous hurt, and sentenced him to rigorous imprisonment for five years. Mr. Manekshaw appeared for the accused and Mr. Shantaram Narayan, Government Pleader, for the Crown.

It appeared that on the evening of the 17th November last Balkrishna Ramchundra was watching his threshing-floor in Vasivali village, waiting for his servants to relieve him for the night, when the accused, a servant of one Tukaram, and two others came to him and enquired whether their cattle had come there. The three men suddenly seized him, and throwing him down, twisted his neck three or four times, made him naked, stretched his arms and legs, and punched him. Balkrishna became unconscious, and when he came to his senses, he saw his two servants standing near him. They carried him home. He suspected Tukaram of having instigated the outrage as he was on bad terms with him in consequence of a dispute about land, and knew well the three assailants, who were relations of Tukaram. Balkrishna died the next day from the effects of the injuries he had received. Before the Sessions Court Tukaram and Narayen Khandu were tried, the former on a charge of instigating and abetting the commission of the offence, and the latter of voluntarily causing grievous hurt. The Sessions Judge, concurring with the assessors, acquitted Tukaram, but, differing from them, convicted the accused Narayen, and sentenced him as stated above.

Their lordships, on a consideration of all the circumstances, reversed the conviction and sentence and directed the accused to be set at liberty.

DEATH FROM STABBING.

IMPERATRIX VS MATHUR JOBAN.

This was an appeal from a decision of Mr. H. F. Aston, Sessions Judge of Ahmedabad, who in May last found the accused guilty of murder and sentenced him to transportation for life.

The offence charged was that the accused and two others intentionally caused the death of one Bhudar Jhala at Manchiel, in the Matra Taluka, by stabbing him in the abdomen with a knife. On the night of the 27th March last, one Gothia was detected visiting Tajudi, a Koli unmarried girl, at night, and at a caste meeting of some thirty Kolis held next day, Gothia was excommunicated. Gothia got enraged, and after exchanging abuse with one Moka, stabbed him in the back. Accused just after that stabbed Bhudar with a knife, and as this moment, the other two, his brothers, held Bhudar. Accused also stabbed one Hira Bhana in the back with a knife, after which he was disarmed. The stab in the abdomen of Bhuda was so severe as to sever off part of his liver and perforate his stomach. He died soon after. The jury found the accused guilty of murder with a recommendation to mercy. The Sessions Judge, concurring in the verdict and taking into consideration the recommendation of the jury, sentenced the accused to tranportation for life.

Their lordships, on a consideration of the case, saw no reason to interfere with the conviction or sentence, and dismissed the appeal.

THE CIGARETTE SMOKER AND THE HANDCUFFS.

MR. ANDREW W. TUER, of the Leadenhall Press, writes :—On Monday morning (10th ult.), I witnessed a sensational scene on the District Railway. I got into the train at Gloucester-road station. Seated opposite to me were a pale middle-aged lady and a slim youth hardly out of his teens. Next to them was a burly looking squire, evidently up on a visit. We were going townwards, and at South Kensington a thick-set young man got in who plumped himself down by my side. He held a lighted cigarette in his hand, and as the pungent blue smoke curled into the lady's face she coughed and looked distressed. The youth said, "This is not a smoking carriage." "I'm not smoking," retorted the other, "and I daresay it will keep in until we get to the next station." "Tobacco smoke makes my mother ill, and I must ask you to put out your cigarette." "I'm not smoking, and I shall do nothing of the kind." "Then I will make you," said the lad, whose face paled. He rose, when the other put out a fist, a single blow from which would probably have crippled that poor youth. And now a singular thing happened. The burly squire, who had remained passive, quietly produced something that glistened, and before you could count three there was a click, and the young man with the cigarette was handcuffed. Said the burly one, "You'll pick up your cigarette and put it out of the window, and then you'll apologize to the lady and young gentleman for having brought a lighted cigarette into a non-smoking carriage. If you behave yourself decently I'll let you go at the next station ; if not, I will hand you over to the company just as you are, and they'll thank me for doing this little job." As the squire-detective finished the speed slackened, and we rolled into the Sloane-square station. Before we left it the cigarette had been clumsily picked up with both hands and dropped out of the window. Muttered apologies were made, all that I caught being, "Very sorry—won't do it again—had no idea." The darbies were slipped off, the door was opened, and our compartment contained one the less. We tried to draw the "squire" between Sloane-square and Victoria, where he got out, but beyond a slight smile, he would make no sign.

THE object of the amendment of the Act relating to steam-ships and inland steam-vessels is two-fold. As the law now stands, the local Government grants certificates to masters of vessels after they have been surveyed by an expert, and it is proposed to give the Government the power of delegating its authority to a properly qualified officer, thus saving trouble and delay in the issue of the certificates. The existing Act lays down the number of passengers which each vessel is entitled to carry after it has been duly surveyed, but, curiously enough, no penalty is stated for any infringement of the law. This omission will now be supplied.

WHAT THE FRENCH REVOLUTION ACCOMPLISHED.

MR. F. HARRISON in the Fortnightly Review gives in striking outline the intolerable condition of things which the Revolution of a hundred years ago swept away like a hurricane :—

Take a rapid survey of France in the closing years of the monarchy. She had not recovered the desolation of the long wars of Louis XIV. ; the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes, the banishment of the Protestants, the monstrous extravagance of Versailles ; and the corrupt system which was there concentrated. The entire authority was practically absorbed by the Crown, whilst the most incredible confusion and disorganization reigned throughout the administration. A network of incoherent authorities crossed, re-crossed, and emb

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE

FRIDAY EVENING, JULY 5.

KEUTER reports the English and French funds unchanged yesterday at 98⅛ and 84¼ respectively; but Indian Sterling Loan was ⅛ higher, at 108. Silver was unaltered at 42 11-16d. per oz. and 4⅛ per cent Rupee Securities were unchanged at £69⅞, but Fours were ⅛ higher, at £67⅞. The Indian Council placed 3½ extra lakhs of Bills on Calcutta at 1s. 4 5-32d. and a lakh and a quarter Wire Transfers at 1s. 4 3-16d., these rates showing an advance of 1-32d. on the previous day's regular allotments. The weekly returns of the Bank of England make the Reserve stand at 42 per cent. of the Liabilities, thus showing a decrease in the former of 2 per cent. since the previous Wednesday. The Bank rate remained at 2½ per cent. and the market rates of discount were also unchanged.

In General Produce there was no movement yesterday, the tone of the Seed and Wheat markets having remained as before, while Tuesday's quotations are repeated all round.

The Liverpool Cotton Market closed firm again yesterday, including Surats, with a further accession of business, the total sales having reached 14,000 bales, inclusive of 1,500 Surats; quotations, however, both spot and arrival, were quite unaltered. The Manchester Market was quiet but steady. The New York Market was closed for a holiday.

There was some return of animation to our local Cotton Market to-day and over 1,500 bales of stuff changed hands, of which more than half were Nuggur, at Rs. 207 to Rs. 215 per candy, the balance being made up of Bhagalpore at Rs. 210, Compta at Rs. 211-14, Bengals at Rs. 198-200, and a little Oojein at Rs. 218 per candy. Some contracts in the next crop of Bengals have been booked to-day at Rs. 182 for "good," and Rs. 190 for "Fully Good," for January delivery.

WHEAT has been taken to about the same extent as yesterday; but with dull news from the other side exporters are not much in the market. The tone here, however, is steady, and prices are maintained for all descriptions.

SEEDS.—A large business is again reported in Linseed and Rapeseed, the latter having been in active demand, and prices have advanced to Rs. 18-1 for Yellow Guzerat, Rs. 7-13 to Rs. 7-14 for Yellow Cawnpore, and Rs. 7-6 per cwt for Red Cawnpore. Linseed has not changed in value, and other kinds also are quoted as before.

The Receipts of Produce into Bombay yesterday were as follows:—

Cotton	1,923 bales.
Wheat	13,742 cwt.
Linseed	8,844 "
Rapeseed	6,074 "
Poppy seed	1,936 "

FREIGHTS are very quiet, with little ready or forward enquiry 20s. per ton for Cotton to the United Kingdom and most Continental ports is still quoted, and 18s. 9d. to 19s. for Seeds and Wheat. The Start (s) has been taken off the berth for London, and has been refixed for a full cargo at 21s. 9d. by a European firm.

EXCHANGE.—Rates both here and at Calcutta continue firm at our quotations, but apparently with little business passing on either side. The demand for remittance is insignificant, and though a few Merchants' Bills have come out at 1s. 4 11-32d. and 1s. 4⅜ for this and next month respectively, the supply is extremely limited. Bank Telegraphic has been available for August transfer and one-wards, at 1s. 4 3-16d. We quote ready:—

Bank Bills on demand	1s. 4 3-16d.	per rupee.
Do. Telegraphic	1s. 4 5-32d.	"
Do. 3 months' sight	1s. 4¼d.	"
Credits do.	1s. 4 11-32d.	"
Francs do.	1·71¼	"

GOVERNMENT PAPER has been weaker to-day, and rates both for Money and Account have given way 1-16 to ⅛ per cent., closing at 100 9-16 for Fours for cash and 100 7-16 for the settlement of the 30th instant, but with buyers for the account. For the other denomination 104⅜ is now the nominal quotation.

SHARES.—Very little has been passing in this market, and the following are the only changes which we have to make in our list this evening. Queen Mill shares are Rs. 10 higher, at Rs. 905; Central India and Presidency are Rs. 5 higher, at Rs. 1,115 and Rs. 1,105 respectively; Luckmidas Khimji have advanced Rs. 7½ say to Rs. 1,112½; New Great Eastern are Rs. 10 lower, at Rs. 725. Prince of Wales Press shares are Rs. 10 higher, at Rs. 1,000 per share.

TELEGRAPHIC WEATHER REPORT.

SIMLA, July 5.—Pressure has fallen over the western half of India, and has risen over the eastern half, except in Assam and Lower Burma. The depression which lay between Saugor and Jubbulpore yesterday has advanced north-westward to the neighbourhood of Ajmere and is filling up. A feeble cyclonic circulation of wind is shown around the storm, and in most other parts of India the winds are normal, but on the west coast they remain very irregular pointing to the existence of small squalls or oddies off the coast. The temperature exhibits little departure from the average except in Burma, where there is an excess of two degrees. Rain has fallen, except in Upper India, Rajputana, Khandesh, Sind, and South Madras, but the amounts are generally moderate.

The Bombay Gazette

SATURDAY, JULY 6, 1889.

WHAT to do with our boys is a question the solution of which seems to become more and more difficult as the years roll on. It is fifty years since the Laureate complained of every door being crammed with suitors, and opening only to golden keys. The straits to which parents are reduced by over-competition have been since then still worse aggravated. Where there is a demand for information there is pretty sure soon to be a supply. Several books with promising titles have been brought out to help the puzzled British parent in his efforts to find a profession for his sons. We have before us a book written with this purpose and bearing the alluring title of "1,000 Ways to Earn a Living." Surely, among these thousand ways, it must be possible without much difficulty to find one suitable for each young man about to enter into the struggle of life, unless he be totally devoid of brains. The first inspection of the index of the book to a large extent dissipates the hopes excited by the title—dissipates at least the hopes of those who regard it as a sine qua non that their children should adopt a distinctly gentlemanly calling. It is true that the wages of manual labour are overlapping those of clerkships and other occupations of unimpeachable gentility. The time may be approaching when the advancing wave of democracy will level existing social distinctions, and one man will be as good as another, or better. But till that time comes, many will shrink from teaching their sons to be barrel ratchet makers, dial finishers, case joint finishers, watch, chain, and hook makers, or performing any other of the forty-six sub-divisions of watch-making enumerated in the index of the book we are considering. The application of the test of gentility will indeed reduce the thousand ways of earning a living to a very small fraction. Nevertheless, though much is ta

DESPERATE CONDITION OF THE DERVISHES.

DISPERSION INEVITABLE.

CAIRO, JULY 4.

The condition of the Dervishes is now one of extreme distress, and their total dispersion or annihilation seems inevitable. Colonel Wodehouse reports that they are mad from thirst and utterly unable to obtain supplies of water. The gunboats along the Nile prevent their access to the river while the cavalry are still pursuing and harassing them.

Colonel Wodehouse further telegraphs that only half of the Dervishes appointed have been engaged in the skirmishes during the week, a large body, estimated at about three thousand men, having been held in reserve.

THE RIGHT HON. W. H. SMITH'S MOTION.

LONDON, JULY 5.

In the House of Commons last night the Right Hon. W. H. Smith moved the appointment of a Committee for the purpose of considering the Messages from Her Majesty the Queen to Parliament regarding the provision to be made for Their Royal Highnesses Prince Albert Victor of Wales and the Princess Louise, and to report what principle should be adopted in future with respect to similar grants.

Mr. Gladstone concurred with the subject of the motion.

Mr. Labouchere contended that grants to the members of the family of H. R. H. the Prince of Wales should come out of the Civil List.

Mr. Bradlaugh urged that the proposed Committee should also enquire into the Civil List generally.

The House eventually adopted the motion.

RECEPTIONS BY THE SHAH.

His Majesty the Shah of Persia yesterday received in audience at Buckingham Palace the members of Mr. Gladstone's last Cabinet.

ADDRESS FROM THE PARSEES.

Mr. Dadabhai Naoroji presented His Majesty with an address from the Parsees, in which His Majesty is thanked for the improved condition of the Zoroastrians in Persia under his reign.

His Majesty in his reply said he was their protector and that he greatly liked the Parsees.

THE FORTHCOMING ROYAL MARRIAGE.

The marriage of H.R. H. the Princess Louise with the Earl of Fife is arranged to take place at the Chapel at Birmingham Palace on the 27th instant.

LORD LYTTON.

Lord Lytton has recovered from his recent illness and returned yesterday to resume his duties at the British Embassy in Paris.

PRINCE ALBERT VICTOR'S BETROTHAL DENIED.

LONDON, JULY 5.

The rumour current at Berlin that Prince Albert Victor would shortly be betrothed to the Princess Victoria of Prussia is denied.

WHAT CAN A HELPLESS WOMAN DO?

(FROM OUR LADY CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, JUNE 14.

I was asked lately what is the sign of an American woman? If it is a riddle, I said, I give it up, for I never guessed a riddle in my life. But it was not a riddle ; it was a serious question which I was expected to think out and answer. So I let my mind wander through the haunts of Americans in London. I saw throngs of gay young girls chatting in the drawing-room of the "Metropole" and I looked for the sign. They are more piquant and pretty than English girls, I said. But I was wrong—that is not the sign. Then there is a blending of Paris and New York in their costumes—something 'chic' in the make—something unconventional in the put on!—No—out again there. Well, they perhaps laugh oftener, gesticulate more freely, or chatter vastly more than their English sisters. True enough, but that is not the sign. You will know an American woman, said the oracle, not by the sunburn she has brought off the journey, though that is a very reliable mark ; nor by the soupcon of nasal twang that strikes on the unaccustomed ear, though that is another good distinction—nor by the woadrous gowns, the daring confections in bonnets, the dainty parasols, an arrangement of drooping poppy petals, more suggestive of sleeping than of sauntering in the sunshine. You may know an American woman, said my critical friend, by her putting on her gloves in the street! I would as readily think of fastening my necktie in Piccadilly, he added ; but I rather like the American girl for this touch of Republican independence—this delightful disregard of public opinion. She does not care a cent whom she pleases or displeases. I, too, thought I rather liked it, for in the palmy days of my youth, when essence of good behaviour was instilled into my young mind, I had vastly more sympathy with the hurried lady's maid who, I was told, put on her gloves abroad, than with the lackadaisical lady who put them on at home. And the same sympathetic leniency clings to me still, as I see impatient young America struggling into her delicate coloured twelve-button gloves, while she gives vent to her feelings by chattering with charming vehemence. The glove incident is in my mind typical of the race. Full of life, health, freshness, vigour, and good spirits, the children of the new world are up and doing and gone ahead, before we of the old have put on our gloves.

Mrs. Frank Leslie is a good specimen of Trans-Atlantic womankind. Contemporary history does not relate whether she puts her gloves on indoors or out—she probably does both—and probably leaves them off altogether when it suits her, for she is of the independent type that does exactly what pleases herself. But she pleases every one else at the same time, for she has a remarkable power of charming those with whom she comes in contact. And she looks well too, having the knack, often wanting in her country people, of dressing in what exactly suits her. The other evening she looked more fascinating than ever in a low cut black dress relieved by an exquisite necklace, that is said to be 14th Century French workmanship—a combination of diamond roses with pink tinted enamel petals and delicate pale blue pendants.

Another charming American whose fame is not a question of when and where she puts on her gloves is the wife of the French Minister. It is not Madame Waddington's fine dresses, or her jewels, or her literary productions that are her strong points. Her charm is heaven-sent ; it is grace. She is said to have the most graceful bearing, the prettiest manner, the most polite tongue in London. Wondrous gift—of the four million and three-quarter tongues in London, the very sweetest is a thing to be envied. Madame Waddington is clever and accomplished as well as charming. At her house in Albert Gate one may gaze on the stars of the firmament of literature and art as well those that shine in the broad expanse of diplomacy. She is specially devoted to music, which she practises under the direction of Mr. Johannes Wolff ; but she cultivates all her talents, and exercises them in directing her son's education.

American women are considered energetic in continuing their studies after their education is what is called finished. To them marriage does not come in the light of emancipation from books of a serious nature as it does to French and English girls. They look forward to keeping up their knowledge, and there is nothing in fra dig in their taking lessons even with their own children. American girl collegians have just now started in New York an institution on the lines of the East End of the London Toynbee Hall Extension. Miss Jeannette Gurney Trice is the founder of a settlement in the heart of the very slums of New York. She has been working on her own account among the people there for the last two or three years, so she has a practical knowledge of that region which is said to be of all the slums of our great towns the slummiest of the slummy.

In the list of clever American women who have made names for themselves in London as well as at home, one is apt to forget, on account of her Italian pseudonym, Madame Albani, privately known as Mrs. Ernest Gye. Madame Albani was one of those precocious young girls who get through the hard work of their education in their teens, and earn the advantage of reaping the harvest while they are in the bright noon-tide of life. At fifteen, Madame Albani was organist to a big church in New York, and was able to discharge her duties of training and leading the choir (a labour which every one who has tried it knows to be Herculean) as well as many older and more experienced organists could have done ; Madame Albani's father-in-law was the famous impresario, Frederick Gye, who gave her her first engagement at Covent Garden. She has a pretty house at the Boltons, South Kensington, which is crowded with souvenirs of her successes. One of her pet treasures is the telegram sent by the Queen to her daughter in Berlin : "I am anxious to recommend Madame Albani to you. She is my Canadian subject and known to me as a splendid artiste, and I take much interest in her. Madame Albani works very hard at her profession and generally takes only a short holiday at the Earl of Fife's residence, Old Mar Lodge, which is within easy distance of Balmoral, where she often goes to sing to the Queen. A talisman without which Madame Albani never travels is a portrait of the Queen and Princess Beatrice, to which she attaches almost a superstitious reverence. Without it she will not sing. It is to her like the ring of the first Napoleon, which he believed kept him from all harm. At the time of his ineffectual attempt to poison himself, he said to Dr. Corvisart, who attended him, "I was not meant to die ; I did not think of my talisman." Napoleon's ring passed to Queen Hortense, and then on to the third Napoleon, who wore it at the time of his death. His son would not have it removed from his father's finger, and it was buried with him. It was considered an evil omen, and when the young prince was killed in Caffraria all hope was given up of the revival of the Bonapartist succession. "The chain of the old tradition is broken," said the old guard of the Tuileries, "one of its links is missing." May Madame Albani's talisman be more lucky.

The Revd. H. R. Haweis and Mrs. Haweis held their third and last reception at their pretty old house in Cheyne Row last Saturday. Among the guests was Mrs. Magnussen, wife of the professor of Scandinvian language and literature at Cambridge University, who on behalf of her Icelandic sisters appeared in native costume and disposed of a number of pretty things of Icelandic origin or manufacture at a stall in the drawing-room. Mrs. Magnussen takes keen interest in the education of Icelandic women, and she has built schools where the girls of poor parents may receive a thorough education in all that is necessary to fit them for the post of head of the family, which belongs to the mother in Icelandic homes. Music and recitations filled up the time that was not passed in pleasant talk with the clever host and hostess. And below the windows there was the Thames glinting in the afternoon sun, a sight worth seeing if there were no other attractions. Mr. Haweis's portrait at Mr. Dressler's Exhibition of leading men has been much criticized. People say it is not characteristic enough, it wants spirit, etc., etc. To my mind Mr. Dressler has acquitted himself very well of a difficult task.

This neat little list of what woman is fitted for I quote from a Californian paper. It might be approved by an East End Sweating Commission.

What can a helpless woman do?
Rock the cradle and bake and brew,
Or, if no cradle your fate afford,
Rock your brother's wife's for your board ;
Or live in one room with an invalid cousin,
Or sew shop shirts for a dollar a dozen,
Or please some man by looking sweet,
Or please him by giving him things to eat,
Or please him by asking much advice,
And thinking whatever he does is nice.
Visit the poor (under his supervision) ;
Doctor the sick who can't pay a physician ;
Save men's time by doing their praying,
And other odd jobs there's no present pay in.
But if you presume to usurp employments
Reserved by them for their special enjoyments,
Or if you succeed when they knew you wouldn't,
Or earn money fast when they say you couldn't,
Or learned to do things they proved were above you,
You'll hurt their feelings, and then they won't love you.

It appears that one of the many means of making money that has been adopted by ladies of rank and fashion has been summarily stopped. For a consideration, there were to be found ladies who presented other ladies (?) at Court. The Queen, naturally indignant, has ordered one of the guilty parties into perpetual banishment from her presence, and declared that she disgraced her order! It was mildly put.

HOMEWARD NOTES.—II.

THE PRIDE OF THE SEA.

The Istrian capital has one show place that no one who passes through the city should fail to see. Miramar, Pride of the Sea though it be, is a place of sad memories. A week or two before the Archduchess Stephanie had been there, wearing the weeds of a tragic widowhood amid the entrancing beauties of this palace by the sea. But its saddest memories are those which the residence within its walls of Maximilian, the ill-fated brother of the Emperor, has left there. Its terraces jut into the sea, and from them you look across the Adriatic into the blue distances of the Istrian Peninsula, upon Capo d'Istria nestling behind its promontory, upon pleasant Trieste reposing at the foot of the circling hills, and upon the giant Alps beyond. In its groves, fragrant with the perfume of orange and myrtle, the rich note of many a songster, unknown alike to English and Indian woods, makes glad the summer evening, and the thoughts wander from this scene of perfect bliss first to the wall of a prison yard in Puebla against which Maximilian, seeking empire in Mexico, was shot like a dog by Benito Juarez's men, and then to the little palace at Laeken, where the widowed Carlotta, partaker of his misery as of his ambition, lingers on in the helpless and hopeless madness born of that cruel tragedy. We are wise after the event, and we think it was a foolish thing to exchange the tranquil delights of Miramar for the best that Mexico could offer. "An hour of Europe for a cycle of Cathay." The exceeding sadness of the story lingers, nevertheless, above our wisdom. The wonder is that those who wield responsibility in these matters do so much to keep it alive. In well nigh every room there is something that recalls the Mexican tragedy—recalls, too, the hideous disappointment of the enterprise. There is a painting which depicts the offer of the crown to Maximilian by a deputation of Mexican notables. An ambitious ceiling picture represents the same incidents in allegorical form ; another, apparently by the same hand, pictures the apotheoses of Mexico, in which the unhappy Emperor of a day figures conspicuously. But it is only to the beginnings of the enterprise that the artists have done justice. There is a particularly gay picture of the scene when the Archduke and poor Carlotta embarked from the landing stairs at Miramar ; the pendent to it would be too sad to paint. And, again, by an exercise of Christian charity, which no one can understand, Maximilian's study still has hanging upon one of its walls a portrait of Louis Napoleon, who lured him to his ruin. Benito Juarez, by whose order the Emperor was shot, was less responsible for his death than he. If there is a heart and a conscience in history, there should be no room in a house that was once Maximilian's for the portrait of the first, at all events, of his executioners. But the pictures in the Miramar collection need, as you would say, "fit editing." These incongruities should be removed, and with them might very well go a wonderful piece of vain boasting, a decorative map to which prominence has been given in the Throne Room, and in which liberal dashes of red indicate every spot in the world over which the House of Austria has exercised or claimed rule. The spirit in which the "summus"—in red paint—has been conceived, may be inferred from the fact that on the strength of the transient connection of the crowns of Portugal and Spain all the Portuguese colonies in Africa and in India, and even the Empire of Brazil, are claimed.

THE QUEEN OF THE ADIATIC.

From Trieste to Venice is but a six hours' journey, whether by land or by sea, and if you care to see Venice at sunrise the sea passage is the best. The city is fairly full in May, and Anglo-Indians find interest in the striking examples of the force of imagination which are presented by Englishmen on tour who believe that the Italian sun is dangerous, and propitiate it accordingly with white umbrellas and alarming solar topees. A soaking wet Sunday recalls these people to the reality, and reminds others that the rain washes out many distinctions and makes a wet Sunday in Venice as miserable as in London, with this additional misery, that though no one objects to your calling for a carriage, it will not come when you do call. The Doge's Palace, nevertheless, is an admirable institution on such a day, and served a double purpose, to which the policy of the English Parliament still refuses to devote the National Gallery and the British Museum. The prisons are the complement alike to the palace and the pictures, and all fall within the day. We think, as we see that separate provision was made for the reception of political and criminal offenders, that Venice might have a lesson for Mr. Arthur Balfour. But there comes a warning against too rapid inference in such matters when we see that the cell of the Venetian guilty of no greater crime than that of falling under the suspicion of the Council of Ten was as dark and noisome as that of less worshy offenders against the criminal law. Those who do not want to be troubled by perplexing questions will do well not to carry the recollection of anything they have seen on the other side of the Bridge of Sighs into the room which Tintoretto and Titians have enriched with scenes from the history of the Republic. Of the piety of the old Venetian Dukes and Senators the pictures in the palace give abundant indication—and the victory of the Republic is commemorated by some pictorial emblem of their pious gratitude to the Disposer of Events. Time and again—though it is true she was changeful in her devotion to the Holy See—the Republic was in close alliance with the Popes. If the memory of the prisons were to haunt us as we stood before Tintoretto's pourtrayals of these kings, we should be vexed with obstinate questionings as to the inability of the Church to soften manners, to mitigate the lot of the prisoner, and to impress counsels of humanity upon the States who came politically under her influence. And it is just such questionings as these that prudent men avoid when they are homeward bound. We take account, nevertheless, of many things around us which indicate that the old faith lives on in a vigorous vitality. Despite all that is said about the growing scepticism of Italy, the churches of Venice are attended by large congregations, and the much too sweeping assertion that faith lingers only amongst the women folk will find here many a convincing contradiction. Here and there, too, are signs that the conflict between Church and State, though more than enough is heard of it, is being carried on in Italy with less bitterness than in France. In the great Municipal Hospital, for example,—a noble institution with over sixty wards,—the nursing is done by sisters, who, though the French freethinkers may find it hard to believe so, do their work with none the less of devotion for wearing the symbol of their faith ; and an altar at the end of each of the chief wards testifies that they manage these things better in Italy than in France. The recent escapades of the anti-clerical party in France meet with no more eloquent condemnation than in the letters of Cavour, whose strenuous refusal to sanction the laicization of the hospitals of Italy was brought to mind in a walk through the great hospital at Venice.

THE LION OF ST. MARK.

One's estimate of St. Mark's is largely influenced by the direction from which it is approached. That is to say, a traveller on his way to the East would be likely to be more deeply impressed by it than one on his homeward journey. He who sees it with a memory charged with reminiscences of the architecture of India will look upon it with no astonishment—certainly with none of the sense of freshness and originality which will be felt by one who has never gone outside the region of Gothic art. It may be doubted, indeed, if in such a case the impression would be deep or serious. The wealth of colour, the blaze of gold, the unsparing distribution of decorative riches which give St. Mark's a place amongst the temples of the world, as distinct from one amongst the temples of Christendom, can be lost upon no one. But in the solemnity and repose which pervade the atmosphere of the greater Gothic edifices in Europe, St. Mark's is altogether wanting. Its glories, such as they are, belong to the East and not to the West, and in contemplating them we feel that if, as Mr. Ruskin has declared, Venice was the meeting-place of Lombard, of Roman, and of Arabian art, it was Arabian art that triumphed in St. Mark's. A home-going Anglo-Indian who finds himself in the midst of its almost barbaric magnificence, feels that he has not yet left the East far behind him. Venice, he finds, has its Golden Temple no less than Umritsar, and he is not quite sure which is the more gorgeous. Some misgivings concerning this world-famous building, to which expression has lately been given in the Piazza, must claim currency in the Bombay Gazette, for a journal less courageous in its tolerance would close its columns to them. That gathering together of the resources of builder and decorator into what is surely in some sense the most wonderful façade in the world—has it not in it something more than a suspicion of Bartlemy Fair? And when one looks upon it and upon the three tall masts in front thereof, newly painted in blatant flaring red, is it an entirely perverted imagination which suggests the spectacle of a very reverend canon of the cathedral mounted on a platform in front of the portico, and shouting to the accompaniment of cymbals and big drum, "Walk up, walk up, personally conducted ladies and gentlemen, and see the Winged Lion of St. Mark's?"

THROUGH THE TYROL.

The traveller who makes his way homeward from Venice has a tolerably wide choice of route. If he elect to go by the Brenner he is off the line of retreat of the great army of the personally conducted. But precedents, august and ancient, are not wanting for his choice. Attila probably led his Huns into Italy along that route. Barbarossa and half a dozen German lords of the Holy Roman Empire certainly did. And you yourself, if you happen to have passed that way on your journey out to India, no matter how many years ago, are pretty sure, out of grateful recollection of these Tyrol valleys, that you rushed by long since, to go home by the way by which you came, even though it were loved rather of Barbarossa than of Cook's tourist. All the way through to Innspruck, and then through the greater part of the Arlberg country towards Switzerland you pass through a pleasant land, in which the valleys stand rich and thick with vineyard, and pasture, and corn, and in which nature has bountifully clad the mountains almost to the line of perpetual snow. Long before you have left Venetia the wealth of her meadows and vineyards makes it no more a mystery that the Goths thought it worth while to sweep down upon Italy than that the Aryans thought it worth while to descend upon India. They came "for the goods" of Italy as the first of the Brunswicks came to England "for our goods." And there is much more in the Italian vineyards than their mere abundance. The vines here hang from tree to tree, bending with a graceful gaiety that is appropriate to the fruit of the earth whose function it is to make glad the heart of man, and carrying with them the suggestion that the world was meant for adornment as well as for cultivation. Farther north, in the lands where German speech and the German spirit prevail, and where the Adige takes the harsh and unlovely name of the Etsch, all this changes, and the utilitarianism of the Austrian cultivator shows itself in the substitution of formal lines of slanting poles for the elegant festooning which makes the vineyards in the valleys around Verona such gladsome features in the landscape. But the tokens of successful industry abound on all hands. It is hard to say to what altitude these patient Tyrolese cultivators have extended the range of cultivation. The tiny white homesteads, standing in the midst of these patches of cleared ground far up on the mountain side, tell of the enterprise of the lowlands, with grass standing rich and lush, almost shoulder high, with cattle in abundance, and with villages neat, prim, and prosperous-looking, forbids what thought that the people of the Austrian Tyrol find much difficulty in making both ends meet. Yet even in these happy valleys the emigration agent seems to have been on the search for recruits, and in whatever town you may chance to stay, you see the usual announcements of the steam-ship companies offering cheap passages to the United States or to South America. For the poor and for the ambitious, verily, there is no abiding city, though in these Tyrol valleys there are corners in which bare existence must be a delight. The old town of Trent is one of them, and has more to recommend it than the fact that the Council of that name found it possible to prolong its deliberations there for eighteen years on and off.

Innspruck, the capital of the Tyrol, is another, with this to recommend it, that it has much of the comfort and elegance of a larger city and that the hotels are exceptionally good. There was a retired Anglo-Indian there the other day who said much about it which, if it were widely known, might convert Innspruck into an offshoot of the rather overcrowded 'Asia Minor," which is known to all of us. He goes regularly to Innspruck in the winter; in its dry bracing air manages to thrive and enjoy himself ; and does not think he is tempting Providence by dispensing with an overcoat even in twenty-five degrees of frost. If he could have shown how one can make the gulden go a little further than it does, he would have done a service to many. But, though the fiction that it is worth two shillings is as long-lived as that other fiction that the rupee is worth anything at all, one finds that for many of the necessities of the way it is little more than an equivalent of the franc. Something might be said, too, about the intricacies of exchange between paper and gold in these parts, but our own exchange problem for the present is five thousand miles to the eastward of us, and we have no burning affection for that of our neighbours. To speak quite judicially on the matter, however, it is an insufferable nuisance to wait at an Austrian railway booking-office while the clerk works out a calculation for converting paper into gold, and it is a discredit to a first-class State to keep an inconvertible paper currency as long as Austria has kept hers. Yet any prospect pleases here, and it is only man, in the capacity of inventor of the paper gulden, who is vile. The Inn runs through one of the richest of valleys, and the mountains that are around it, clothed in perpetual snow, are so close upon the city that they seem to lie within municipal limits. It is this which gives Innspruck one of its most striking characteristics, and makes the Maria Theresenstrasse—a fine open thoroughfare of imposing buildings, with the vista at the end shut in by snow-clad Alps, which seem to rise almost from the street itself—quite noteworthy amongst the streets of Europe.

From Innspruck, if you are disposed to forego the delights of Munich and the Rhineland, the homeward route lies along the Arlberg Railway, which goes through magnificent country, and, like the Brenner line, exhibits some audacious engineering exploits, in comparison with which our Ghat lines cease to appear phenomenal. But long before you have got to Basel you are in lands known unto all men, and of which therefore no word need be said here.

THE RIOTS AT BANDORA.

Twenty-two of the rioters alleged to have taken part in the disturbances at Bandora on Sunday last were brought by Mr. Samuel Ellis, Chief Constable of the Tanna Police, at Bandora, before Mr. A. F. Macconochie, First Class Magistrate at Bandora, on Thursday on the charge of rioting. It will be remembered that the Kolis had been making merry after the feast of St. Peter's and St. Paul's, and the old ill-feeling between the two factions getting roused a regular pitch-battle was engaged in between the Chimbais and Kolwadis, in the course of which eleven of the rioters were injured. Five of the accused were discharged on account of there being insufficient evidence against them, and the remainder, seventeen in number, were convicted, and were each sentenced to undergo one month's rigorous imprisonment and to pay a fine of Rs. 20, or in default to undergo a further imprisonment of two weeks. They were, moreover, bound over to keep the public peace in Rs. 200 personal recognisances and securities of Rs. 150 each. Several persons, including some of the ringleaders, will be called upon to show cause why they should not be likewise bound over to keep the public peace. Amongst the seventeen convicted persons, seven belonged to the Chimbai faction, while the remaining ten were Kolwadis. Being summoned on Thursday before Mr. Anandrao Bhaskar Pradhan, Second Class Magistrate, as to whether they had any complaint to lay before the court before being conducted to Thana, they more or less pleaded guilty. Eleven or twelve of them bore various bruises and wounds they had received about the face and head in the fight. About half-past twelve on Thursday close on three hundred Kolis, including men and women, thronged around the Bandora Court, eager to catch a glimpse of the prisoners while they were being hand-cuffed. The scene was indeed a pitiful one. The women of both factions cried and sobbed, and as the prisoners were led from their cell, the weeping wives, with their infants in their arms, made a simultaneous rush in the direction of the prisoners, wailing piteously. There is a rumour that an appeal is to be made to the Thana Sessions Court.

DANGEROUS USE OF FIRE-ARMS.

Yesterday at the Esplanade Police Court, Kallianji Canji, a dhobie, charged Sergeant-Major Fieldhouse, the Sergeant-Instructor of the Bombay Volunteer Rifle Corps, before Mr. C. P. Cooper, with doing a rash and negligent act by discharging a rifle in the direction of his house. The complainant stated that on the 17th ultimo the accused was firing at some pigeons from the roof of the Volunteer Head-Quarters on the Carnac Road, and that one of the bullets from the rifle struck his window, penetrating it, and striking the wall opposite. After striking the wall, the bullet fell to the ground, and was picked up by the complainant, who was in the room at the time. The complainant said that this was not the first occasion on which he had been thus annoyed, but he had made several complaints to the police of people firing guns from the same place. A witness called by the complainant stated that he had seen the accused firing at pigeons from a compound behind the Volunteer Head-Quarters on the same evening, and that on his remonstrating with him, he had pointed the gun at him, and had threatened to shoot him. Sergeant Fieldhouse denied the charge. His Worship, in disposing of the case, said that no person was allowed to use an air-gun, pistol, or rifle near a public roadway without the permission of the Commissioner of Police. As there was a doubt as to the identity of the accused, he would discharge him, but he hoped that he would in future see that no fire-arms were discharged near the Volunteer Head-Quarters, and that he would advise him to have a notice printed and posted up in that place, warning persons to desist from the practice.

The cantonal authorities of the districts around Mount Pilatus, near Lucerne, are considering whether to accept or reject a scheme for the construction of what may be called a hanging road. The proposal is quite a novel one. It has been submitted by M. Leonardo Torres, of Santander, through the Central Government at Berne. This road would connect the so-called Oberhaupt, or highest point of Pilatus, with the Klimsenhorn. The object would be to make the ascent of the mountain easier on the northern side, and to shorten the ascent for tourists coming from Hergiswyl. The difference in level between the two points is set down at 194 metres ; the distance between them at 465 metres. The road apparatus (for such it must be called) would consist of six wire cables, quite independent of one another, on which six light pulley wheels would move, and from these wheels a small omnibus, capable of carrying eight persons would hang. The omnibus would be drawn by a rope attached to a steam-engine.

Mr. J. R. Reid, who has had a long and trying illness, is now considered convalescent, and will probably start home next month. Colonel Erskine, now that he has succeeded to the Kumaon Commissionership, will forego the three months leave that he was otherwise to have taken on the conclusion of the Administrative Committee's sittings at Naini Tal.

COMIC SCENES IN COURTS.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

There is a point beyond which human forbearance cannot go, and the most even of tempers will be roused at times. At an assize held some years ago both judge and counsel had a deal of trouble to make the timid witnesses upon a trial speak sufficiently loud to be heard by the jury, and it is possible that the temper of the counsel may thereby have been turned from the even tenor of its way. After this gentleman had gone through the various stages of bar pleading, and had coaxed, threatened, and even bullied witnesses, there was called into the box a young ostler, who appeared to be simplicity personified.

"Now, sir," said the counsel, in a tone that would at any other time have been denounced as vulgarly loud. "I hope we shall have no difficulty in making you speak out." "I hope not, zur," was shouted, or rather bellowed out, by the witness in tones which almost shook the building and would certainly have alarmed any timid or nervous lady.

"How dare you speak in that way, sir?" said the counsel.

"Please, zur, I can't speak any louder," said the astonished witness, attempting to speak louder than before, evidently thinking the fault to be in his speaking too softly.

"Pray, have you been drinking this morning?" shouted the counsel, who had now thoroughly lost the remnant of his temper.

"Yes, zur," was the reply.

"And what have you been drinking"?

"Corfee, zur."

"And what did you have in your coffee, sir?" shouted the exasperated counsel.

"A spune, zur!" innocently bawled the witness in his highest key amidst the roars of the whole court, excepting only the now thoroughly wild counsel, who flung down his brief and rushed out of court.

But this counsel was not the only one who had collapsed. An old darky was under indictment for some trivial offence and was without counsel. The judge appointed one to defend him. The individual appointed was young and very fresh at the time, and it was his first case in the court. As he went forward to consult with his client, the latter turned to the judge and said "Yo' honah, am dis de lawyer what am depointed to offend me?" "Yes," was the reply. "Well," said the old darky, "take hit way jedge ; I pleads guilty." This was rather a hard case for the lawyer, especially as it was his debut.

Anyhow, he would not have liked to have been in the state in which an eminent lawyer was once. The gentleman in question, who was then quite young, was retained as advocate in a case on which, not feeling himself sufficiently prepared to plead, he was very desirous of obtaining a postponement. As, however, the court had already protracted its session beyond the usual period in consequence of an unusual amount of business, and of course the jury were impatient to be released from their duties, he was well aware that it would be impossible to procure such a postponement unless he could allege some extraordinary case. Fortunately, or unfortunately as the result proved, he had a lively imagination, and had quickly formed a plan which he was sure would be successful. With his handkerchief to his eyes he addressed the court in great apparent emotion :—"May it please the court, I have just heard of the dangerous illness of my venerable mother, who is lying at the point of death. Under such circumstances, much as I regret protracting an already lengthened session, I must request that this case be postponed. My feelings are so powerfully agitated that I should be unable to do justice to the case, feeling as I do that my proper place is at the bedside of my mother." The pathetic appeal was completely successful. A feeling of earnest sympathy for the afflicted counsel pervaded all hearts, and the jurors, though anxious to return to their families, were not so hard of heart as to wish to have the business of the court proceed at such a sacrifice of personal feelings. The judge, who was a tender-hearted man, had risen, and was about granting the counsel's request, when the deep hush was broken by a shrill voice, which proceeded from a lady who was bending over the railing of the gallery. It was the mother of the eloquent counsel, who, so far from being at the point of death, came within but her son's knowledge to hear him plead. "James, James!" she cried, in a voice that could be distinctly heard all over the house—"James, James! how often have I chastised you for lying?" It is needless to say that the court-room shook with laughter, and the eloquent counsel sat down, completely non-plussed. The case was not postponed. Poor soul!

A LADY-DOCTOR SUED FOR HOUSE RENT.

Yesterday at the Small Cause Court, before Mr. W. E. Hart, Chief Judge, Vybhookhundass Atmaram and another sought to recover the sum of Rs. 1,200 from Selena Armstrong, a lady-doctor, being the amount of rent of a bungalow at Khetwaddy, occupied by the defendant from the 1st September 1888 to the 31st April last at Rs. 153 per month. Mr. Mansookhlal M. Manshee, solicitor, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. A. F. Turner, solicitor, appeared for the defendant. The defendant, it appears, had paid Rs. 50 on account, leaving a balance of Rs. 1,150, and Rs. 58 being the half for stamp and for framing the agreement of lease. The plaintiff repeatedly requested the defendant for payment of the amount, together with the expenses incurred in connection with the preparation of the agreement by the defendant, but she failed to pay the same. Mr. Munsooklall said his clients had issued distress warrants before judgment, and attached the moveable property of the defendant on account of arrears of rent due from September 1888 to March last, and when the matter of the distress warrant came before the Second Judge, the defendant appeared with her solicitor, and after the Judge had questioned her on certain points, the warrant was discharged, and three months' time was given her to pay the amount. He further stated that, after the order was made by the Second Judge, the defendant had sold her property on the 1st ultimo, and left Bombay with her debt unpaid. Mr. Turner said that, after the institution of the present suit, his client paid to the plaintiff Rs. 150 on account, and there was now due by her to the plaintiff Rs. 1,005-8, which amount he was instructed to admit and to apply for six months' time to pay the same, or for small instalments. The defendant came to Bombay as a lady-doctor, and started an hospital for women at Khetwaddy. She did very well, and paid the rent of the bungalow very regularly until she became ill, and during her illness she lost all her practice, and the rent fell into arrears. She gave up the bungalow and left Bombay for Lahore, where, he was instructed to say, she is in good practice, and expects to pay off the debt in a few months.

Mr. Munsooklall opposed the application for instalments, on the ground that the defendant had already had three months' time awarded her by the Second Judge to pay the amount, but had not done so. He would, however, consent to another month being given for the payment of the amount due, and not any further time. His Honour passed a decree in favor of the plaintiffs for Rs. 1,005-8 and court costs, and ordered the amount to be paid within a month.

RACING IN KASHMIR.

The first gymkhana of the Gulmarg season was held on Wednesday, June 26th, and was a great success. The events were well contested. The weather is glorious now after the rains. The races next week promise well. The Resident and H. H. Raja Amar Singh are expected daily. The following was the result of the events :—

First Race.—Maze Race for Gentlemen. Rs. 16. Won by Mr. Grey ; Mr. Carruthers second. The following gentlemen competed :—Messrs. Thuillier, Wingate, Crooker, Kellett, Seagrave, Garraway and Taylor.

Second Race.—Maze Race for Ladies. Rs. 16. Won by Mrs. Brown on her handsome little mare, Merry Maid. The following laidies competed :—Madame De Bourbel, Miss de Bourbel, Miss Repton, Miss Losacke, and Miss Priestly.

Third Race.—Match Rs. 500. P. P. distance, 300 yards. C. W.

Mr. Kellett's bl c-b m Penelope, Dr. Nicolls	1
Mr. Seagrave's m c-b p Eloh Ezra, Mr. Thuillier	2

Fourth Race—Postllion Race. Distance ½ mile. Rs. 16. Mr. Wingate's pair won easily. The following pairs competed :—Messrs. Thuillier, Carruthers, Taylor, Crooker, and Kellett.

Fifth Race.—Ball and Bucket Race. 2 runs. R over, unless it might have been while working at shelter trenches, I think they may be considered to have undergone a pretty good test for stamina and powers of endurance.

I particularly remarked, with regard to fire tactics, that volley-firing was hardly ever used. It was nearly always independent at all distances. The whistle was a good deal used while firing was going on. At the short ranges and when approaching to close quarters, magazine fire was made use of. I did not see any machine guns in the field. It would have been very interesting to see in what manner they are likely to be used, which, I presume, they will be in the next great war. How employed and to which arm they will be attached?

I did not see anything of visual signalling, either by heliograph or flags. I saw the field telegraph being carried about in wagons, and saw it laid down in places, but I do not know how or on what system it was worked. I took some notice of the soldier's boot. It is a sort of Wellington, roomy about the calf, well greased, particularly about the ankle, so as to give plenty of play to the foot in walking. The uppers are of rubber leather, with which on service and field manœuvres the trousers are tucked, thus saving the foot and leg covering in one piece. That they can do a good deal of marching in this boot was proved during the field operations, and I did not see any man fall out with sore feet. It certainly looks rather clumsy for quiet work. It has, however, this great advantage, that it can be pulled off and on very quickly and at one operation. I believe a light-laced shoe or boot is carried in the knapsack. A new field equipment has been lately issued to the German Army of date 1887. The principal items are :—The knapsack or valise and straps, waist-belt, ammunition pouches, sword-bayonet and scabbard, mess tin, havresack, receptacle for the iron ration, entrenching tool, great-coat, forage cap, and water-bottle. The ammunition pouches are three in number, one on the waist-belt, two in front containing 30 rounds each, and one behind, which holds 40 rounds, thus the soldier carries 100 rounds. The great-coat is made up in a roll and is fastened round the knapsack, the lower part resting lightly on the rear pouch, thereby, it is claimed, relieving the chest of a portion of the weight of the pack. The havresack and water-bottle, instead of having separate straps to go over the shoulder, are attached to the waist-belt by a long flat hook, so that the soldier can slip them on and off whenever he pleases without disturbing the rest of the equipment. The new sword-bayonet is very much shorter than the former one and more like a dagger, not much longer than a good-sized shikar knife. A certain number of men of each company are provided alternately with a pick or light spade, which is strapped on to the bayonet scabbard. The whole of the equipment can be removed by the soldier himself without assistance. The helmet or pickelhanke has been very much lightened by removing most of the brass ornamentation and substituting a leather for the chain chin-strap.

In conclusion I would remark that during these manœuvres, the men always seemed cheerful and good-humoured, and they have a healthy and wholesome look about. This I should be inclined to attribute in a great measure to the absence of drunkenness amongst them. I have heard it remarked that a German soldier has no pocket-money so cannot afford to drink. Be that as it may. I did not hear of a single case of drunkenness during the whole period of the camp, and one would think there must have been temptations in the towns and villages where many of them were billetted, meeting friends or townies who would treat them, nor did I ever see a man in the slightest degree overcome with liquor. One should think he must be about the soberest soldier in the world, and consequently so much the more amenable to discipline, able to endure fatigue and easily commanded.

CENTURION.

CRICKET AT SIMLA.

A MATCH was played at Annandale on Saturday, 29th ultimo, between the Union C. and F. Club and the Cottonians (12 a side), which resulted in a defeat for the club by an innings and 17 runs.

The Cottonians, winning the toss, went in first and put together a score of 191. The Union only managed to put together 88 in their first innings, to which Fox (the only double figure) contributed 25, and were obliged to follow on.

They required 104 to avert a single innings defeat, but they failed to get the required number of runs, and all their wickets fell again for the same score as that made in the first innings. Several good men of the Union Club were unable to play, and, moreover, they had five of their own men (including McDonald, who made 63 runs) playing against them. Rivett bowled excellently in the first innings, taking 7 wickets for 9 runs. Annexed are the scores made :—

AN INFANT KING ON HIS HOLIDAYS.

THE Queen-Regent of Spain left Madrid about a month ago with her children for a change of air. She selected for that purpose the Royal Castle of Aranjuez, on the banks of the Tagus. Queen Christina is an early riser, and leads an active life during her short holiday, a correspondent writes. After breakfast and early mass, she takes the little King out for a walk or drive, either alone or with his sisters. When the busy indoor hours are over for the Queen Regent, she and her children sally forth with only one lady in waiting as the afternoon wanes and the air grows cooler.

HIS MAJESTY SAYS "I WON'T."

One day, just before the hour when the Royal Family go out for their evening stroll, I happened to pass under the palace windows, and witnessed a curious episode in which the little King was the principal actor. I noticed some people looking up at the centre windows of the first floor of the Palace facing the garden. In a balcony his Catholic Majesty Alphonso XIII. who had managed to shut the shutters behind him was playing very contentedly, kissing his little hands to his much amused subjects below. Then his Majesty's nurse, a dark, handsome, stout woman, in the costume of the peasants of the Santander mountains, appeared behind the King and tried to coax him away from the balcony. But he sturdily clasped his little hands to the railings and lustily cried, "No quiero! No quiero"! (I won't, I won't). But soon the nurse was reinforced by the Senora de Tacon, who acts as superintendent of the little Sovereign's household, and held the same post when his father, Alphonso XII., was still a child. But the nurse lifted his Majesty up and bore him off inside, despite his repeated and loud protests. As I had just come from the Casa del Labrador, where we had seen many portraits of the Bourbons, I could not help being much struck with the resemblance between the little fair, bareheaded King three years of age and his ancestor Charles IV. He seems a very energetic child, and looks in fair health, though not stout or strongly built in body or limbs.

THE CHILD KING AND THE TURF.

Royalty in Spain no longer takes pleasure in the pomp and splendour such as used to surround it even so recently as the reign of Queen Isabella. Thus it is that the streets of Aranjuez and its parks and gardens have no longer the bustle and life which we see portrayed in old engravings and pictures. Except on Sundays, the Madrilenos seldom go down to trespass on the privacy and seclusion of the Queen. She often drives her son to the Royal stud establishments, and to the equally important breeding establishment of Duke Fernan Nunez at La Flamenca. In both places some of the best race-horses of this country have been reared and trained—by Englishmen, however. King Alphonso used to take great pride in his stud and race-horses, and, under a "turf-pseudonym," he won many races at Madrid and Seville. Indeed, he used to back his own horses, and not always in small stakes either.

THE ROYAL DUTIES OF THE YOUNG MONARCH.

Doña Christina has begun at Aranjuez to initiate her son in his Royal duties, taking him often to see an institution founded by the late King—an asylum for the orphans of officers and non-commissioned officers who have died in service. The crown gave up one of the largest buildings on the Royal domain for this asylum, where several hundred orphans of both sexes are brought up at the expense of the State and with money contributed by the Royal family and by officers of every branch of the service. The boys are trained for the army, navy, or some profession. The girls are educated to become teachers or governesses. The widowed Queen feels kindly for these children, whose fathers are lying on the hillsides of north and central Spain or in the jungles of Cuba. On her first visit we are told that she said to her son, "You must love them and be good to them, because they are like you—they have no father here; their fathers, too, are in heaven."

THERE seems to be no end to American ingenuity. We now learn that Mr. Edison is reported to have invented a far-sight machine, increasing the range of human vision by hundreds of miles, and enabling a man in New York to see the features of a man in Boston. Mr. Edison hopes to perfect the invention by 1892.

SOME TENNYSON MSS.

SOME lose blue-tinted quarto sheets and a few rather dirty leaves of white note paper were put up to auction the other day, at the rooms of Messrs. Sotheby, Wilkinson, and Hodge. The writing to be seen on them varies considerably in character, though from the same hand—mostly exquisitely neat with corrections interpolated with the care of the copying clerk; at times rough and ready as though the direct outcome of impulse and emotion. These autograph manuscripts, whatever their monetary value, are of rare interest, not only to the scholar and literary student, but to the wide public whose admiration for genius is as unstinted as it is indiscriminating, and whose anxiety to read the heart of their favourite in its inner workings is as little deserving of reprehension as is their admiration and love. The manuscripts in question are the originals of various poems by the Poet Laureate.

The first portion of MS. catalogued was the original of the Dedication of his "Poems" to the Queen, written in 1851. The first verse of this noble address originally ran—

"Revered Victoria, you that own
The stateliest office upon earth,
Fulfilling by the rights of birth
The sacred duties of an English Throne."

This was the first rough sketch jotted down with a careless hand, as though its writer were afraid of losing the idea while unheeding the exigencies of metre. The maturing of thought gives the master-hand new vitality and power, and the M. S. is overhauled once more. "The stateliest office" of the second line becomes "a nobler office," and the weak and pointless third and fourth lines are endowed with a force and fascination that have often swayed us—

"Than arms, or power of brain, or birth, Could give the warrior kings of old."

the deleted matter is here quite legible, and the corrections are made unhesitatingly, no alteration or amendment being afterwards made in the substituted lines. The second verse displays little variation from the words as they now appear, but the variation is important, a poor commencement being transformed by a magic touch into what is of primary importance. Every one recalls

"Victoria—since your Royal grace,
To one of less desert allows
This lateral greener from the brows
Of him that uttered nothing base."

The "Victoria" of the first verse is now transposed to the second, and the impersonal strength of the "revered, beloved," gains marvellously by the change. In the MS. the second verse begins thus—

"I thank you that your Royal grace, &c."

almost in the spirit of the laudatory clap-trap of laureates of a previous century, the word "thank," in its sound and sense, contrasting strangely with the apotheosis of Wordsworth, which immediately follows in the MS., without change or correction, exactly as printed. Probably this tribute to his predecessor had been ringing for some time through Tennyson's brain.

The third verse as it appears in the MS. has been deleted in proof—

"Nor should I dare to flatter state,
Nor such a lay would you receive
Were I to shape it, who believe
Your nature true as you are great."

The exquisite delicacy of this allusion to the worth of his theme is as noticeable as the suggested reference to the proclivities and time-serving humours of poets, like Cibber and Whitehead, who had left the Laureate bay besmirched and withered. Whether the verse was lacking in strength or modulation, or rang false to the poet's ear, it is difficult to say, but it has been sacrificed in proof.

The fourth verse of MS. allows a clear insight into the fastidiousness of the craftsman engaged in the finishing and perfecting of his work. We give the verse as it originally stood, placing the MS. corrections in their order within brackets :—

"But if [sd.] your greatness and the care
That yokes with splendour, yield you time
To some [quaint] thin [your Laureat's] [Poet's] rhymet
For [if] aught of good or noble [graceful][sweet be] there.

It passed into type thus, but the thrusting forward of his own personality in the third and the commonplace wording of the fourth lines jarred in harsh dissonance on the writer's ear. The alterations that must have been made in the proof weld together the words and the sense in a burst of music :—

"And should your greatness, and the care
That yokes with empire, yield you time
To make demand of modern rhyme
If aught of ancient worth be there."

"Empire," conveying a specific word value, takes the place of the meaningless "splendour," and the third and fourth lines are almost entirely re-written.

The MS. contains a verse which was printed in the first edition, but which has now disappeared from the revised works. It is an error to describe this as unpublished, but its being reprinted here will serve to still further enlarge our conception of what modifications and amplifications the "Dedication" experienced before it was pronounced by the author well and truly fashioned. The lines run in the MS.:—

"She brought a vast design to pass
When Europe and the scatter'd ends
Of our fleet word were mixt as friends
And brethren in her halls of glass."

In the first edition "were mixt as friends" appears as "did meet as friends."

As the poem slowly grew from inception to maturity there is less trimming; the changes are verbal and trivial—"may children of our children sing" appears in the MS. as "may children of my children sing," an inartistic touch which the Laureate's correct judgment afterwards rectified. The verse beginning "Then—while a sweeter music wakes," &c., which is among Lord Tennyson's happiest efforts to transmute into words Nature's beauty and music with epigrammatic force and vividness, is absent altogether from the MS., which winds up with a short note to his publisher :—"My dear Moxon,—I send you the three last stanzas of the dedication. Ought not all the you's and the your's and the her's to be in capitals? Send the revises.—A. TENNYSON."

From these indications the reader will gain a distinct idea of the Laureate's careful methods—the slow carving out of the marble—what amount of realism and strength accrue with each touch as the words take shape and beauty. It is, in short, a laying bare and anatomising of the palpitating forces which go to make up the poet's brain power. But in another autograph MS.—viz., a portion of "Maud," comprising Sections iii. (not catalogued), vii., viii., x., xii., xvi., xix., xx., xxi., of Book i., and Section v. of Book ii.—we can see the action of these forces, not in words, but on an inferior plane which gives a fibre and a colour to the tragedy of the luckless lover.

"Maud" was published in 1855, and in its time has been touched and retouched. The substance of Section XXIV. of the first edition was published, with some variations, in the year 1837, in a long-forgotten volume, entitled "The Tribute; a Collection of Miscellaneous Unpublished Poems by various Authors, edited by Lord Northampton." The verses are of supreme interest as being the germ from which the perfect poem sprang, as the flower from the root, and of themselves make, in the words of Mr. Swinburne, writing in 1867, "the poem of deepest charm and fullest delight of pathos and melody ever written, even by Mr. Tennyson; since recast into new form, and refreshed with new beauty to fit it for reappearance among the crowning passages of 'Maud.'" There are verses, however, which have not yet been in print in any shape or form, the portion of MS. now exhibited to the public gaze, including matter which bears in some measure, on the artistic completeness of the work. The poem in its entirety is like some Greek gem flashing forth ruddy rays as though each feature, each lyric, were surcharged with the heart-blood of its originator. The depth of triumph which the lover feel towards his rival, the "baby-faced lord," in whom poverty of blood is only equalled by poverty of mind, is suggested in the poem as it now stands, with many subtle touches that are more telling than a flood of disdainful wrath. That such was not altogether Lord Tennyson's primary intention is made plain by some additional verses in the MS. which have been deleted in proof, their reproduction in all the cold reality of print bringing home to him that his purpose was equally, if not better, served by their omission. There are some four verses in all, and the following excerpts, without being full, will bear out our contention :—

"Will she smile if he presses her hand,
This Lord-Captain up at the Hall?
Captain? he to the Devil—command!
He can hold a cue, he can pocket a ball;
And sure not a bantam cockrel lives
With a weaker crow upon English land,
Whether he boast of a horse that gains,
Or cackle his own applause. . . .
"Bought commission I cap such as he
Be wholesome guards for an English throne,
When if France but made a lounge (sic), why she,
God knows, might prick us to the backbone,
"What use for a single mouth to rave
At the rotten creak of the State machine,
Tho' it make friend weep and enemy smile,
That here, in the face of a watchful age,
The sons of a gray beard-ridden Isle
Should dance in a round of old routine,
While a few great families lead the reels,
And pauper manhood lies in the dirt,
And Favour and Wealth with gilded heels
Trample service and tried desert."

The other variations shown on collation between the MS. and the first edition are interesting in their way, but without sufficient importance to warrant exhaustive comparison in detail. The exquisite line which brings to an end the third section of Book I.—

The shining daffodil dead, and Orion low in his grave—is alive in every reader's memory. "The shining daffodil," a phrase that gives in two words a picture in colour, is not seen in the MS. In its place is written "The sweet narcissus," through which the poet has drawn his pen, substituting "The golden aconite," which has been altered in proof.

PARIS PRICES.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Home News, writing from Paris, says :—"Popular though the Exhibition has become, it is hardly as popular as it might be. People with limited purses, in England especially, are being frightened away by the ridiculous announcements made by some of the correspondents here as to the appalling increase which has taken place in prices everywhere. Nothing of the sort has happened, and, with the exception of such hotels as, I believe, the Bristol and the Grand, where the majority of people do not stay, prices are what they always have been. Even in the Exhibition the tariff is not so high as is represented. You can get a good luncheon for four francs, and if any one pays ten francs who cannot well afford it, the fault rests with himself. Even a bottle of Allsopp's can be got for a franc, though in the theatres English ale fetches three or four francs the bottle. Paris has good reason to complain of the mis-statements made by correspondents who have taken the increase in price at the very best hotels as indicative of a general prohibitive rise."

AN HOUR WITH ROBERT BUCHANAN.

"WELL, what are we going to talk about?" was the frank, cheery greeting that met me as I entered Mr. Buchanan's pleasant sitting-room in Cavendish-place. Thus a correspondent begins an account of an interview with the out-spoken and at present much-abused author. He continues :—

On looking I beheld a strong-built, brown-bearded man, of middle-age, surveying me through a pair of spectacles, without which he is rarely if ever seen.

"Well," I replied, "Mr. Buchanan, that is rather hard to say. You have lately been so much en evidence that I feel it difficult to know exactly where to begin. Personally I have been interested in all your late appearances; for instance, with regard to your article upon the pessimism of the Modern Young Man, I have found myself so much in accord that I am quite pleased to have a chance of talking to you about it?" "Yes," was the slow reply; "the worst of these young gentlemen is they are never in earnest. Their pessimism is the natural reaction following the too great optimism, the too faith of their predecessors. They are the product of the spirit of the ago. But pessimism in religion, art, in any great work or movement means destruction, pure and simple. The hope of humanity is its life; and without hope it cannot exist.

MORE LIGHT.

The only remedy I can see for this disease is a wider, more generous knowledge of life. Each man must live his own life. It is that self-pride of the literary class, that hiding away of itself from the great wide world surging around it that is so terribly to blame for all the nonsense these young idiots talk and write. They know so little because they have read so little." "Do your remarks apply as much to women?" "Well, no, but then I don't know much about the literary woman; by-the-bye, how delightful it was those girls meeting to dine and chat the other day. I liked that very much. People have complained that the names of those present were not widely known. Exactly, and for that very reason were they met together. What need of advertising her whose name is a household word. The idea was to encourage the young beginner, and by word, they want encouragement now-a-days. And they spoke out pretty plainly too, those young ladies. Zola was fully discussed by them, and a general opinion was arrived at that he ought to be read, and they agreed also that all freedom ought to be allowed in literature, no matter how far that freedom might be carried. I am a strong believer in their political emancipation. I think they would vote just as well as men."

IMPULSION.

"Ye-o-es," I said, "but are they not rather too apt to be lead away by impulse?" "Very likely, and all the better, I like impulse; it is because they are so impulsive that the French are our superiors! But then, you know, I am enthusiastic about women, people tell me I am idiotic to believe in them as I do, but I can't help it. I have always had faith in them, and I think such a belief is elevating to a man. The Roman Catholic Church is founded on the adoration of the Virgin, it is the basis of a great truth." "You mentioned Zola just now, Mr. Buchanan, do you not think he dives unnecessarily into nastinesses?" "Well, that is a question of art; the English prejudice against him is partly the insular feeling against all that is French. He feels it right to do so, and who am I that I should condemn him? Personally I detest his writings, but at the same time I consider him the greatest literary phenomenon of the age. He has innovated and created more than any other writer has ever done. He has opened up a new world. The absolute, naked truth cannot be spoken, more's the pity.

ZOLA, A MORALIST.

But, if you notice, Zola has always a good moral. He has some absolutely angel characters. One man is a modern Christ, some of his women the sweetest and purest ever known in fiction. Zola will be a classic; he represents an almost unformulated element in literature. No, as you are doubtless aware, I do not agree with the prosecution of Mr. Vizetelly. In his catalogue there is little that is objectionable. I am no believer in tyranny or in the power of the majority. Here the British public determines not to hear about the relation of the sexes; certain things are to be said or not; they hear no more. The vox populi determines these matters, and so, blindfolded, the world rushes on to its destruction. In this particular case of Vizetelly there is, I think, a strong religious inquisition. The collective religious spirit of all the sects is against him; for remember this, all materialism, all pessimism, must press upon priestcraft, and as the Zolas of this world are the sufferers, but in the end they will be the conquerors. Books do not make good or bad people. I hold with Milton, that stern old Puritan, that strong natures require strong food, and that mere knowledge of evil does not make a man or woman bad. In my late article on chivalry, I made a statement much cavilled at the time, but which has since been voluntarily confirmed by the authorities at the Lock Hospital. But it is time for me to be off, I must finish writing pleased upon writers and publishers, to speak the truth as one knows it. It is simply the Star Chamber over again, and it will end in worse evil. I contend, for perfect freedom, we must describe things as they are if we are to do any good at all. For this very reason, my "Martyrdom of Madeleine" is all wrong, too conventional. Blackpool refuses to allow its grey-haired inhabitants to read "Foxglove Manor"—there's hypocrisy for you! We cannot get a subject ventilated on the stage. The Lord Chamberlain licenses almost any nasty leg piece, but a strong, earnest story, with a moral, is tabooed."

RATHER PUGNACIOUS.

"You have a good many enemies, Mr. Buchanan, have you not?" I asked, with an amused smile. "Well, yes, I suppose I have. I have an unfortunate way of speaking my mind. I am rather pugnacious; it's the Irish blood in me, I suppose. But I never bear malice and I am always ready to own I am wrong. For instance, I withdraw much I said about Rossetti. Froude pitched into me because of my remark that he was the Nemesis of Carlyle." And then, again, many of the goody-goodies liking some single remark I have made, have taken me up only to drop me like a hot coal; however, it'll all come right in time and I do not doubt I shall shake hands all round before the end." "Are you writing anything now?" "Yes, my autobiography, I think it'll be interesting. But, then, I have a lot of books lying about unfinished. All my books, except poetry, are almost word for word in my brain before I sit down to write. As a boy I used to sit and wait for inspiration. Now I know the turn of every phrase, and so it comes glowing red-hot to my pen's point. I have no fixed mode of work, but I generally write just after breakfast. I find this play-writing a great relief. Indeed, had I not taken it up I should have gone mad. I am so exercised about the questions of the day—religious, social, literary. I was brought up in an atmosphere of thought. My father, a Socialist working tailor, ran away as a Socialist lecturer. Robert Owen gave my mother away. Well can I remember, on a steamer at Oban, years after, talking to a steward about the American War. He displayed a marvellous knowledge of the subject. 'Why,' I said, 'where on earth did you get all your information from?' 'From your father, Sir, and the articles he wrote in his newspapers,' was the very unexpected reply. Yes, Kingsley, Hughes, F. D. Maurice—they all knew my father."

A GERMAN EXPLORER ON ENGLISH MISSIONARIES.

HERR EHLERS, who recently presented the Embassy of the Sultan of Mandura to the German Emperor, the other day, gave a lecture to the Geographical Society of Hamburg on his travels, in the course of which he spoke of his English friends in the most cordial terms. He said: "I think it my duty publicly to express my gratitude to Colonel Euan-Smith and to all the English missionaries with whom I came into contact in the course of my expedition. It would, indeed, have been impossible for me to reach the goal of my journey—the country of Kilima Njaro—without the ready assistance of the English. It was only through Colonel Euan-Smith and the Rev. Mr. Salton-Price, who was at that time at the head of the missionary station at Mombassa, that I obtained the necessary number of porters. I had great difficulties in this respect, as the porters in Zanzibar refused to venture into the interior; but owing to the assistance of these kind friends I was enabled to enlist the services of some liberated slaves from the missionary settlement at Rabai. Besides this, the English Consul-General placed at my disposal his own steamer for the transport of my baggage to Mombassa, and sent to me from time to time during my sojurn near the Kilima Njaro despatches concerning the progress of events on the coast—a little attention which, I may add, each time cost him about 120 marks (6*l*). When finally the attention on the coast became such that fears were entertained for my safety, it was again my English friends who helped me, by organizing in due time a relief caravan to be sent to my assistance from Mombassa. In short, wherever I met English missionaries, whether on the coast or in the interior, I always met with a hospitable reception, and where necessary with active support."

THE ATTACK ON VALETTA.

THE night attack on Valetta, writes the United Services Gazette, took place as arranged on the 11th ult. The Bendow, Phaeton, Landrail, and Don, with two first-class torpedo-boats, left Malta harbour about 3-30 p.m. and steamed away to the south-eastward. At 8 p.m. the batteries were manned and the electric search lights swept the surface of the water in all directions, but it was considerably later before the attacking squadron have in sight. In the meantime two merchant steamers making for the harbour were so surprised by the search lights on them, and by two guns fired at one of them under the impression that she was the Landrail, that they turned seawards again, and waited until the operations were concluded. When the attacking force came near the harbour the batteries opened fire, and the ships replied, steaming along in front of the forts at about 1,500 yards distance. The second-class torpedo-boats made a dash at the Phaeton but were at once seen, and fire was opened on them. As a spectacle the attack was very fine, but there was too bright a moon for the search-lights to be efficiently tested in discovering ships or boats. As, however, the principal object of the operations was to decide if the search-lights on shore were placed in the most effective positions, the moonlight was not of so much consequence. It is stated that the military authorities do not consider the lights are placed as well as they might be, and alterations are to be made accordingly. An attack by the two first-class torpedo-boats on the Polyphemus, lying in Bighi Bay, finished the proceedings, the attack being easily repulsed. The Don, going nearly 3½ knots at full speed, only managed to get up near enough to engage the forts just as the affair was over. It is intended to dock her and her sister ship, the Dee, shortly to clean their bottoms which are in a very foul state, as may be imagined from the speed made by them.

IN PRAISE OF PURE FICTION.

IN the "Editor's Study" section of Harper's Magazine for June, Mr. Howells discusses the question of how much or how little the English and American novel "ought to deal with certain facts of life which are not usually talked of before young people, and specially young ladies."

NOVELS "VIRGINIBUS PUERISQUE."

Mr. Howells begins by pointing out one marked distinction between English and French novels:—The novel in Anglo-Saxon civilization (he says) now always addresses a mixed company, and the vast majority of the company are ladies, and very many, if not most, of these ladies are young girls. If the novel were written for men and for married women alone, as in Continental Europe, it might be altogether different. But the simple fact is that it is not written for them alone among us, and it is a question of writing, under cover of our universal acceptance, things for young girls to read which you would be put out-of-doors for saying to them, or of frankly giving notice of your intention, and so cutting yourself off from the pleasure—and it is a very high and sweet one—of appealing to these vivid, responsive intelligences, which are none the less brilliant and admirable because they are innocent.

THE INTOLERABLE SAMENESS OF FRENCH NOVELS.

Mr. Howells next proceeds to carry the war into the French camp :—One day a novelist who liked, after the manner of other men, to repine at his hard fate, complained to his friend, a critic, that he was tired of the restriction he had put upon himself in this regard; for it is a mistake, as can be readily shown, to suppose that others impose it. "See how free those French fellows are!" he rebelled. "Shall we always be shut up to our tradition of decency?" "Do you think it's much worse than being shut up to their tradition of indecency?" said his friend. Then that novelist began to reflect, and he remembered how sick the invariable motive of the French novel made him. He perceived finally that, convention for convention, ours was not only more tolerable, but on the whole was truer to life, not only to its complexion, but also to its texture. No one will pretend that there is not vicious love beneath the surface of our society; if he did, the fœtid explosions of the divorce trials would refute him; but if he pretended that it was in any just sense characteristic of our society he could be still more easily refuted. Yet it exists, and it is unquestionably the material of tragedy, the staff from which intense effects are wrought. The question, after owing this fact, is whether these intense effects are not rather cheap effects.

NAUGHTY AND EASY.

Mr. Howells thinks they are, and makes it a ground of attack upon the French novelists that naughtiness is such an easy trick in the novelist's art:—The material itself, the mere mention of it, has an instant fascination: it arrests, it detains, till the last word is said, and while there is anything to be hinted. This is what makes a love intrigue of some sort all but essential to the popularity of any fiction. Without such an intrigue the intellectual equipment of the author must be of the highest, and then he will succeed only with the highest class of readers. But any author who will deal with a guilty love intrigue holds all readers in his hands, the highest with the lowest, as long as he hints the slightest hope of the smallest potential naughtiness. He need not at all be a great author; he may be a very shabby wretch, if he has but the courage or the trick of that sort of thing. The critics will call him "virile" and "passionate"; docent people will be ashamed to have been limed by him; but the low average will only ask another chance of flocking into his net.

THE TRUE PERSPECTIVE IN FICTION.

Reverting to the Anglo-Saxon novel, Mr. Howells says it does not altogether refrain from touching on the seamy side; it only touches it with decency, and in true perspective. "They (the Anglo-Saxon public) require of a novelist whom they respect unquestionable proof of his seriousness, if he proposes to deal with certain phases of life; they require a sort of scientific decorum. He can no longer expect to be received on the ground of entertainment only; he assumes a higher function, something like that of a physician or a priest and they expect him to be bound by laws as sacred as those of such professions; they hold him solemnly pledged not to betray them or abuse their confidence, if he will accept the conditions they give him their confidence, and he may then treat to his greater honour, and not at all to his disadvantage, of such experiences, such relations of men and women, as George Eliot treats in "Adam Bede," in "Daniel Deronda," in "Romola," in almost all her books; such as Hawthorne treats in the Scarlet Letter;" such as Dickens treats in "David Copperfield;" such as Thackeray treats in "Pendennis," and glances at, even in one of his father. Such as Mrs. Gaskell treats in "Ruth Baton;" such as most of the masters of English fiction have at some time treated more or less openly. It is quite false or quite mistaken to suppose that our novels have left untouched these most important realities of life. They have only not made them their stock-in-trade: they have kept a true perspective in regard to them; they have relegated them in their pictures of life to the space and place they occupy in life itself, as we know it in England and America. They have kept a correct proportion, knowing perfectly well that unless the novel is to be a map with everything scrupulously laid down in it, a faithful record of life in far the greater extent could be made to the exclusion of guilty love and all its circumstances and consequences.

THE LAST DAYS OF FATHER DAMIEN.

ON the 28th of March Father Damien took to his bed, and on the 30th began his direct preparations for death by a general confession and renewal of his vows. Next day, says the Tablet, he received the Holy Viaticum. On April 2, Father Conrardy gave him Extreme Unction. "How good God is," he said during the day, "to have preserved me long enough to have my priests by my side at my last moments, and also to have the good Sisters of Charity at the leperosrie. That has been my 'Nunc Dimittis.' The work of the lepers is assured, and so I'm no longer necessary, and will soon go 'up yonder.' "When you are up above, Father, you will not forget those you leave orphans?" "Oh, no! if I have any credit with God, I will intercede for all in the Leprosorie." I then begged him to leave me his mantle, like Elias, in token that he might have his great heart. "Say, what would you do with it?" asked, it is all full of leprosy!" A few days of respite, even of rallying and hope, followed. The good Sisters of Charity often visited him. Everybody admired his wonderful patience. On the 13th he had a bad relapse, and all hope was as an end. A little after midnight he received Holy Communion for the last time, and began occasionally to lose consciousness. The next day he still recognised his comrades, but could not speak, though from time to time he affectionately pressed their hands. On the 15th his agony began, and soon all was over. He died without any effort, as if going to sleep. After death all marks of leprosy disappeared from his face, and the wounds in his hands were quiet dried. At his own request he was buried under a large pandanus tree. When he first lauded at Molokai he had no dwelling, and was obliged to sleep for several nights under the shade of this tree, and for this reason he desired to be buried there. The spirit of Father Damien is by no means extinct in his brethren. Last year, by the generosity of a Protestant banker, Mr. Bishop, and with the co-operation of the Hawaiian Government, an asylum for leprous girls was opened at Kalaupapa, in Molokoi, under the care of the Franciscan nuns. The Bishop (Mgr. Hermann) desired to appoint a chaplain, and appealed for a volunteer. The result was that, with the exception of some who felt quite hurt that any doubt should be cast or implied upon their obedience, all the fathers answered with a veritable enthusiasm. The answer of the one who was chosen was worthy of his institute and of his great model; "My answer is in the rule!"

REPORTERS AS STOKERS.

THE trial trip of the new cruiser Charleston has been watched in San Francisco with a great deal of interest, but for some unknown reason the Union Iron Works declined to allow press representatives to accompany the vessel. In the dilemma the editors were compelled to use strategy, one of the San Francisco paper says, and they selected one of their best adapted men for the difficult task of securing passage in some capacity. One poor fellow was told that he would be required to ship as a coal-bunker and he was given a sufficient amount to buy a pair of overalls a jumper, a flannel shirt, and all the other outward ingredients necessary to give him the appearance of a true sailor. The reporter invested the money as required, and in his new outfit applied for the position. He was accepted and boarded the new cruiser and started to the hold to be instructed in his rather uncongenial duties. He went to work with a will, but the close atmosphere and the heat, to which he was unaccustomed, soon showed that he had not the material in him which makes a first-class tar, and he was compelled to come ashore and report to the city editor that his health would not permit him to see the Charleston safely to Santa Barbara channel and return alive. Another member of the staff was selected to act in the capacity of coal-heaver, and if he does not succumb to the heat of the fire-rooms, the public will receive all the information necessary as far as it can be obtained from the reporter's secluded quarters. A representative of another journal, who has some knowledge of machinery was successful in obtaining a minor position in the engine-room, and from last account he was at his post when the Charleston steamed out of the harbour.

PROFESSOR LANKESTER'S THEORIES.

AT the Royal Institution, Professor Ray Lankester accounted for the absence of eyes in the fishes in the famous underground Kentucky caves in the following way:—A great flood carries to the bottom of the Kentucky caves, some thirty miles below the surface, a number of fish among whose very numerous offspring will be some defective in sight, as some babies are born blind, or without any eyes at all. The fish who can see some faint glimmerings of light will swim away towards that light, while those will remain that cannot perceive the gleams. This with every succeeding generation would occur, the stronger in sight swimming away and the weaker remaining, and as the breeding would therefore occur between those of the worst sight, fish would be born with weaker eyes and weaker until born blind. The ingenious and erudite professor also accounted for the white patch on rabbits' tails. He explained that as rabbits are gregarious animals, signalling is of great advantage to them, and that the white patch so conspicuous against the darker fur of the rest of the body is of use as a signal. Hares, on the other hand, being solitary animals, do not stand in need of a signal. Hence the tail of the hare is not conspicuous in its colour. What next? Needless to say that the whole lecture was listened to with the greatest attention.

THE SHAH.

THE Rev. H. R. Haweis in the St. James's Gazette asks its readers "Do you know anything about the Shah," and thus he proceeds to enlighten them :—

The public still know very little about him. Nothing could be more puerile than the senseless jests and ignorant wonder lavished upon this eminent person by our music-hall 'Arrys and others who should have known better when he first visited us some years ago. "Have you seen the Shah?" was the then common but satirical inquiry. "Do you know anything about the Shah?" is a rather more sensible question. He will be with us in a short time. This descendant of princes who once held the same suzerainty in the East that Charlemagne claimed in the West—this "King of Kings," as he is to this day called throughout Persia and Afghanistan—is in many respects a highly remarkable personality. He is between sixty and seventy, but looks much younger, the same to the throne quite a young man in 1848. No one knows much of him then. As Crown Prince he was taciturn, fairly well-educated, without confidants, thoughtful, and reserved rather than studious. He was not supposed to be a man of action or specially apt for governing; but from the moment he ascended the throne a change came over him. Every province in his empire was then in open revolt. With the aid of a certain Grand Vizier of high genius—a man so great that had he lived he might have changed the face of the East—the young Persian monarch subdued the rebels and soon got the reins of power into his own hands. He then quietly gave his Grand Vizier the go-by, turned a deaf ear to his would-be counsellors, broke the intrigues of the harem, smiled down the dismay of the jacks-in-office who had lorded it over his father, and proceeded to surround himself with numerous chamberlains, who became less his Ministers than his executive officers. At first he showed signs of what is called Liberalism, and it seemed as though he might give his people some sort of Constitution; but those were stormy times. The Shah has marked the fate of Louis Philippe, of Bomba, of the Russian Emperor, of Lincoln, of Garfield, of Napoleon III.; indeed, as he remarked some time ago, with the exception of Queen Victoria and the old German Emperor, there was hardly a crowned head in the world but what had been either assassinated, threatened, or deposed.

IN HIS OWN HANDS.

So he elected to keep all power in his own hands; and he has reigned for forty years without a rival over the most mixed, wayward, and fanatical people in Asia. From the moment he ascended the throne, instead of exploiting the country for his pleasure, he applied himself to the arts of war in order that he might be strong, and then to an encyclopodic course of study in order that he might be wise. He has learned French since he became Shah. Geography is a passion with him. He is an excellent mathematician, and so good a financier that he controls personally the whole expenditure of his Court.

He revises the accounts and authorizes the payments. He is a clever artist, an elegant poet, and a voluminous writer. Our Persian Minister, Malcolm Khan, by far the most enlightened Oriental now in England—perhaps in Europe—has been heard to say that every despatch received in England bears signs of having been read and corrected by the Shah; and the clearest and ablest State papers are written with his own hand. He is surrounded by Oriental intrigues, but he dominates them all by she

[PATENTED JULY, 1888.]

PRONOUNCED BY EMINENT MEDICAL MEN AS BEING

The EASIEST CARRIAGE in the WORLD!

THIS drawing only conveys in a faint degree the important and valuable advantage of this machine. It is gracefully suspended on four coiled springs from the sides of the body to the extended handles. Consequently when the Carriage is passing over kerbstones or any rough surface of the least kind, the springs are at once brought into play, and a gentle swinging up-and-down motion occurs. By this motion the most delicate infant receives the easiest form of nursing and riding combined which the mind can possibly conceive.

The Carriage is also fitted with an entirely new patent canopy, which can be adjusted to any angle. By a simple arrangement it can be placed at either side or either end.

THE LAND OF THE MIDNIGHT SUN

This Picture shows the Cod Fishing Fleet leaving the village of Bretteaner, Messrs. JENSEN & Co.'s Headquarters in the Hofoden Islands. To secure perfectly Fresh Livers, Messrs. JENSEN & Co. send a large vessel of 1,000 Tons Burden out with the Boats. The Fish are put on board this floating factory as soon as they are caught. Their bodies are salted and sold as food in Roman Catholic Countries. The Offal dried makes Jensen's Manure, and the Livers are carefully washed and put at once into steam pans, in which the Oil is extracted. It is this promptness which gives JENSEN'S COD LIVER OIL its sweet, pleasant taste, and its wonderful digestive properties. The Oil as it exists in the cells of the Liver, when perfectly fresh, is clear and colourless; but if the Livers are allowed to lie they decompose, and the Oil acquires a nauseous taste, gradually becoming of a light brown colour.

The highest Medical authorities have acknowledged the services rendered by Messrs. JENSEN & Co. in enabling them to procure that most valuable cure for Debility in Children or Adults—Cod Liver Oil—without nauseating their patients. Sufferers from weak and impaired digestion find immediate relief directly they begin taking this Pure Oil. JENSEN'S COD LIVER OIL is now sold by most Stores in India in Capsuled Bottles, each bearing the Trade Mark—an Iceberg. The London prices are from 1s. upwards.

Dr. Bright's Phosphodyne

Is a marvellous medicine for renovating impaired and broken-down constitutions. It operates on the system without exciting care or thought upon the individual as to the process. It moves the lungs, liver, kidney, stomach, and intestines, with a harmony, vigour, yet mildness unparalleled in medicine.

Dr. Bright's Phosphodyne

Gives back to the human structure, in a suitable form, the phosphoric or animating element of life, which has been wasted and at once imparts new energy and life to the enfeebled constitution.

Dr. Bright's Phosphodyne

Is patronized by Aristocracy and the Elite, extensively used in the Army and Navy, and highly recommended by the leading Medical Practitioners.

THE GREATEST BLESSING

OF Life is a Perfect State of Health. To secure this undeniable boon use LAMPLOUGH'S PYRETIC SALINE as occasions arise. When the

STOMACH IS DISORDERED through over-eating or drinking, or taking unsuitable food, its corrective action is mild, speedy, and permanent. It is highly extolled and constantly recommended by eminent medical gentlemen. (See Bill with each Bottle.) It strikes at the ROOT OF DISEASE, improving Digestion by clearing away obstructions and impurities from the Stomach, Liver and Bowels, and at the same time renovating the Blood eradicating poisonous and feverish humours, cooling and oxygenating it.

IN FEVERISH COLDS AND ALL FEVERISH SYMPTOMS it is pre-eminently useful. Taken on going to bed it removes the stuffy sensation in the nose and results free breathing, inducing peaceful sleep.

NO OTHER MEDICINE REQUIRED for fifteen years. Mr. YOUNG writes: "For something like fifteen years I have constantly taken your Pyretic Saline, that is to say, every morning. During the whole of that time I have never taken any other medicine, nor have I had a doctor." It is MOST EFFICACIOUS in preventing and curing Constipation, Sick Headache, Vomiting, Feverishness, Scarlet and other Fevers, Small-pox, Eruptive and Skin Affections, and kindred ailments. Sold by all PATENT MEDICINE DEALERS, and by

NERVOUS EXHAUSTION.

PULVERMACHER'S WORLD-FAMED GALVANIC BELTS, for the cure of NERVOUS EXHAUSTION and DEBILITY, have received Testimonials from THREE PHYSICIANS TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN and the leading Physicians of Nine London Hospitals, including Forty Members of the Royal College of Physicians of London.

The distressing symptoms of NERVOUS EXHAUSTION and DEBILITY are speedily removed by means of Pulvermacher's World-famed Galvanic Belts, which are so arranged as to convey a continuous electric current direct to the affected parts, gradually stimulating and strengthening all the nerves and muscles, and speedily arresting all symptoms of waste and decay.

Dr. C. HANDFIELD JONES, F.R.C.P., F.R.S., Physician to St. Mary's Hospital, says: "I am satisfied that Mr. PULVERMACHER is an honest and earnest labourer in the field of science, and I think he deserves to meet with every encouragement from the profession and scientific men."

Sir CHARLES LOCOCK, Bart., M.D., Physician to Her Majesty, says: "PULVERMACHER'S BELTS are very effective in Neuralgia and Rheumatic Affections, and I have prescribed them largely in my practice for other similar maladies, paralysis, &c."

THE ARISTON ORCHESTRIONETTE.

Agreeable and pleasant passtime for the "cribbed, cabin'd and confined" during the rainy months.

THE Ariston Orchestrionette is the latest and most ingenious development of mechanical chamber music. It is in fact a little hand Organ played in the old fashioned way by turning a handle, but by a skilful adaptation of the Jacard principle, there is practically no limit to the variety of the tunes they are capable of playing. The music is impressed upon circular cards with perforations, instead of a revolving cylinder. These circular cards have only to be placed one at a time in position and rotated by turning the crank handle and the tune and time are exactly communicated to the keys. It produces a really extraordinary volume of sound for so small an instrument. There is plenty of music in it for twenty couples to dance to.

One geta tired of the familiar tunes of one's own musical box, however good a one it may be. It will only play a certain number in a certain order of rotation, and always with the same mechanical exactness without any varity of expression. The great achievement of the Ariston Orchestrionette is that it is capable of producing almost any music.

We have them in various sizes. :—

Rs. 45, Rs. 48, Rs. 50, Rs. 65, Rs. 120, and Rs. 150 Each.

One Dozen Cards free with Organ. The Extra Cards cost the small sum of Rs. 10 per dozen for the small size and Rs. 18 for the large.

A Skin Without Blemish

EVERYWHERE a network of sudorific ducts, veins, and pores, the skin constantly renews itself, and not only with its ceaseless desquamation, but with its natural functional action, eliminates all waste, accumulation, and disease. Hence, a skin without blemish means more than beauty; it means health.

CUTICURA, the great skin cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite skin beautifier, prepared from it, externally, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new blood purifier, internally, cure every species of torturing, disfiguring, itching, scaly, and pimply diseases of the skin, scalp, and blood, with loss of hair, from pimples to scrofula.

My wife has been suffering from chronic eczema for two years. First we took advice from our local doctors, then she went to one in one of the first Skin Hospitals, and at last, being nearly "done up," she went to one of the most eminent physicians, but all in vain. She then determined to try the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and in one week after taking them she was able to walk and attend to her regular duties as lady of the house, and after the second week, I must say, there was no sign of eczema to be seen. W. P. W.

Full address of Messrs. NEWBERY.

Allow me to express to you my heartfelt thanks for the good which your CUTICURA REMEDIES have done me. I have suffered for the past three years of eczema of the hands and arms, and have endured a great amount of suffering, and expended untold sums of money on doctors, attending various skin hospitals, and also on remedies of one kind or another, but all to no purpose, as my arms got worse instead of better; in fact, they were perfectly loathsome to behold. At last I was persuaded by a lady friend of mine to try the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and after using three packages, the disease disappeared like magic.

ELIZABETH EDWARDS, Buckingham Road, N.

When I wrote you last year I was suffering with a very bad leg. It was swollen to more than twice its natural size, and broke out in four great sores, attended with most intense itching. Added to this, I had most dreadful attacks of sick headache. All my friends thought my work was done, when seeing CUTICURA REMEDIES advertised, I procured a set, which, I can thankfully say, quite cured my leg, and I have never had a sick headache since. Indeed, I was never better in my life than I am now. You are at liberty to make what use you like of this letter.

MEASUREMENT OF WIGS AND SCALPS.

I BEG to call the attention of my Customers for the system of measuring the Head for theatricals and daily wear Wigs, and, to ensure a perfect fit, I impress upon them the necessity of sending the exact sizes according to the following instructions. As no special system can be laid down for the prices of Scalps, on account of the variety of sizes and shapes, the safest mode is to cut a paper of the shape and size of the bald part, and describe the parting if any be required. If contract is to be made for price, please enclose pattern and description, so as to ascertain the cost of the article.

MEASUREMENT REQUIRED.

No. 1.—The Circumference of the Head.

QUEEN'S HEAD HOTEL, NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE, 4th June, 1877.

SIR,—Will you to-day allow me to present you with this Testimonial and Poem on your justly celebrated FRUIT SALT. Being the writer for several first class London Magazines, and my occupation being a very sedentary one, I came here for a few weeks, in order to see what change of air would do for me, and at the wish of some personal friends of mine here I have taken ENO'S FRUIT SALT, and the good results accruing therefrom have been my reason for addressing you.—I am, Sir, yours truly, A LADY.

Free from danger, free from harm,
Its acts like some magician's charm;
At any time a dainty draught,
Which will dispel disease's shaft;
More priceless than the richest gold,
That ever did its wealth unfold;
And all throughout our native land,
Should always have at their command
Eno's famous Fruit Salt!

Cool and refreshing as the breeze,
To headache it gives certain ease;
Biliousness—it does assuage,
And cures it both in Youth and Age;
Giddiness it will arrest,
And give both confidence and rest;
Thirst it will at once allay,
And what the best in every way,
Why, Eno's famous Fruit Salt!

"MANY sick people looked upon me as a physician. For a long time we had been in the centre of Africa without any medical man. Natives came with all manner of diseases. One day we had a man said to be mad. Whether mad or not, he was far from well, and I gave him a dose of Eno's Fruit Salt. The poor fellow came back next morning much better. His breath was no longer offensive, and he looked cheerful. We were sorry when our supply of Fruit Salt was done; it was a favourite both with natives and Europeans, and is much used along the malarious coasts."—"Africana," by the Rev. DUFF MACDONALD, M.A., B.D., Vol. II., p. 267.

INDIA AND ENO'S FRUIT SALT.—"Dibrughar, Upper Assam, India, March 6th, 1880. "Dear Sir,—I desire to state the advantage which I, and many others in this part of the world, have derived from your FRUIT SALT. Unlike other Saline Aperients, it is not lowering in its action. I have used it on board ship in tropical latitudes, and both there and here I can honestly bear witness that its use has warded off fever over and over again. When taken in time it is invaluable. It is most popular in this part of North Eastern Asiatic India. From my extreme individual inconvenience arising from publicity I do not wish my name to appear, and merely subscribe myself, most truly yours, 'A PLANTER.'—J. C. ENO."

CAUTION.—Examine each Bottle, and see that the capsule is marked "ENO'S FRUIT SALT." Without it you have been imposed on by a worthless imitation. Sold by all Chemists.

Prepared only at

DR. LALOR'S PHOSPHODYNE.

HEALTH, STRENGTH, AND ENERGY.

For TWENTY FIVE YEARS has maintained its world-wide reputation as the ONLY SAFE RELIABLE PHOSPHORIC REMEDY ever discovered for the Permanent Cure of Brain Wreckage, Paralysis, Sleeplessness, Harassing Dreams, Premature Decay of Vital Power, and all Functional and Diseased Conditions of the System, dependent upon the Deficiency of the Vital Forces.

IT CURES Dyspepsia, Nerve, and Heart Disease.
CURES Kidney and Liver Complaints.
CURES all Blood Disorders.
CURES Consumption and General Debility.
CHECKS all Wasting of the Vital Forces,
From whatever cause arising.

The EFFECT of this Standard PHOSPHORIC Remedy in Nervous Debility and its kindred Evils is immediate and permanent, all the Miserable Feelings and Distressing Symptoms disappearing with a rapidity that is Really Marvellous,

DR. LALOR'S PHOSPHODYNE

Actually creates New Nervous Fluid and Brain Matter by supplying the Blood with its Electric Life Element—PHOSPHORUS, the very Core and Centre of the Brain itself, restoring the fullest and most vigorous conditions of Robust Health of Body and Mind, and whilst pleasant to the taste, never fails to Purify and Enrich the Blood, and thoroughly invigorate the Brain, Nerves, and Muscles. Its energising effects are shewn from the first day of its administration by a Remarkable Increase of Nerve and Intellectual Power, with a Feeling of Conscious Strength, and Comfort, to which the Patient has long been unaccustomed. Digestion is invigorated. The Appetite increases wonderfully, The bowels become regular. Sleep becomes calm and refreshing. The face becomes fuller, the Lips red, the Eyes brighter, the Skin clear and healthy, and the Hair acquires Strength, showing the importance of its action on the Organs of Nutrition.

DR. LALOR'S PHOSPHODYNE

as the only Medicine of the kind or name awarded a Certificate of Merit, at the Calcutta Exhibition, 1883-4, where all Countries were Exhibitors and the only Trade Mark—"PHOSPHODYNE"—Registered and Protected under the Trade Marks Act.

BEWARE OF VILE IMITATIONS!—None is genuine unless every bottle bears the British Government Stamp with the words "DR. LALOR'S PHOSPHODYNE, London, England," engraved thereon.

THOUSANDS of unimpeachable TESTIMONIALS from all parts of the World, and from the highest Medical Authorities, prove conclusively the Verdict Universal that, in the World of scientific research, no other PHOSPHODYNE Preparation has received such exalted praise and distinguished recognition.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.

DR. PROSSER JAMES,
Lecturer on Materia Medica, London Hospital.
"Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL contains the whole of the active ingredients of the remedy, and is easily digested. Hence its value, not only in Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, but in a great number of cases to which the Profession is extending its use."

DR. HUNTER SEMPLE,
Physician to the Hospital for Diseases of the Throat and Chest, London.
"I have long been aware of the great reputation enjoyed by the LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL introduced into medical practice by Dr. DE JONGH, and have recommended it with the utmost confidence. I have no hesitation in stating my opinion, that it possesses all the qualities of a good and efficient medicine. Its taste is by no means disagreeable, and might even be called pleasant. I have found Dr. DE JONGH'S OIL very useful in cases of Chronic Cough, and especially in Laryngeal Disease complicated with Consumption."

DR. SAUNDERS, C.B.,
Late Deputy-Inspector-General Army Hospitals, Superintendent London Medical Mission.
"I have used Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL extensively among the sick poor of St. Giles's, and consider it a valuable remedy, especially in the Wasting Diseases of Children."

DR. WHITMORE,
Medical Officer of Health, St. Marylebone, London.
"My own somewhat lengthened experience as a Medical Practitioner enables me with confidence to recommend Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT BROWN COD LIVER OIL as being more uniform in quality, more certain in its effects, more palatable, and infinitely less likely to disagree with the stomach than the Pale Oil. If I were asked for an explanation of the marked success which for so many years has attended the administration of Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL, I should say that it is owing to its extraordinary medicinal, dietetic, and nutrimial properties, and which are found to exist in no other medicine that I am acquainted with, in such uniform combination."

Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL is supplied ONLY in IMPERIAL Half-Pints, Pints and Quarts, sealed with BETTS' Patent Capsule impressed on the top with Dr DE JONGH'S Stamp, and on the side with his Signature, and the Signature of ANSAR, HARFORD & Co.; and bearing under the wrapper a Label with the same Stamp and Signatures.

WITHOUT THESE MARKS NONE CAN POSSIBLY BE GENUINE.

A WONDERFUL MEDICINE.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

ARE universally admitted to be worth a Guinea a Box for Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Wind and Pain in the Stomach, Sick Headache, Giddiness, Fulness, Swelling after Meals, Dizziness and Drowsiness, Cold Chills, Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Scurvy and Blotches on the Skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, and all Nervous and Trembling Sensations, &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes.

BEECHAM'S PATENT PILLS. ST. HELENS LANCASHIRE

Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all humours, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no medicine to be found equal to Beecham's Pills for removing any obstruction or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health. This has been proved by thousands who have tried them, and found the benefits which are ensured by their use.

For a Weak Stomach, Impaired Digestion, and all Disorders of the Liver, they act like magic, and a few doses will be found to work wonders on the most important organs in the human machine.

They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse into action, with the rosebud of health, the whole physical energy of the human frame. These are FACTS testified continually by members of all classes of society, and one of the best guarantees to the Nervous and Debilitated is, BEECHAM'S PILLS have the Largest Sale of any Patent Medicine in the world.

Beecham's Magic Cough Pills.

As a remedy for Coughs in general, Asthma, Bronchial Affections, Hoarseness, Shortness of Breath, Tightness and Oppression of the Chest, Wheezing, &c., these Pills stand unrivalled. They are the best ever offered to the public, and will speedily remove that sense of oppression and difficulty of breathing which nightly deprive the patient of rest. Let any person give Beecham's Cough Pills a trial, and the most violent Cough will in a short time be removed.

The Natives of India will find Beecham's Pills the finest medicine ever introduced to their notice; the English residents also will find them of great value for Cooling the Blood: as for throwing off Fevers and preventing inflammations in hot climates, they stand without a Rival.
